MEMBERS OF Cub Scout Pack 794 kicked off Canton Township's bicentennial celebration last week, when they presented Supervisor Robert Greenstein and other members of the township board a blue, star-spangled bicentennial flag. Each boy was honored with a certificate, signed by Greenstein and Canton bicentennial chairman Joseph DeLaurao thanking them for the flag.

State aid drop will force cuts to balance budget

PLYMOUTH—Projected costs for the coming school year exceed revenues by close to $400,000, according to Plymouth Schools Assistant Supt. for Business Ray Hoedel, as he outlined the need for passage of the June 9 millage proposals.

Voters will be asked to renew a 5.15 mill levy for the operating funds of the district and tack on another .46 mill levy for operations, which will replace a portion of debt retirement funds and a safety millage which expire this year.

"Our costs will rise by close to $2.7 million because of increased enrollment, inflation, and contractural salary increases, while revenues look like they'll be up by approximately $2.3 million," Hoedel said.

"While our debt levy has been dropped becasue of the increased SEV (State Equalized Valuation) in the district, our state aid will be cut.

The current $400,000 difference between revenues and expenditures will have do be trimmed, according to Hoedel, even if both millage proposals are passed by the voters on June 9.

The state aid formula for the 1975-76 school year calls for a reduction of per pupil allotments from a current $197 to $144. According to Hoedel, this reduction alone represents more than $500,000 that the district will not receive in state aid payments during the next school year.

Based upon current estimates, cost increases for the school district over the current school year total $2.69 million. Those increases include:

- Salary inprovements for present staff which includes added fringe benefits and a cost of living adjustment which total $1.16 million.
- A teacher center jointly funded by Northville, Plymouth, Novi, and the Wayne County Intermediate School District will total $45,000.
- The replacement of buses and increase in the number of buses needed for increased enrollment will total $76,000.
- The additional teaching staff needed to meet the increase in enrollment will total $450,000.
- Utility costs are expected to increase by $40,000.
- State mandated special education programs will bring a cost increase of $450,000.
- An increase in varsity, intramural and other physical education programs have been approved by the board at a total cost of $36,000.
- The first year increase for the year-round 45-15 program at Miller School have been set at $45,000.
- Maintenance and operation increases including the replacement of equipment, day-to-day cleaning, and grounds work, plus salary increases for custodial staff and increased costs for supplies have been set at $300,000.
- Transportation costs in addition to the purchase of buses is expected to total $117,000.
- Cost increases for teaching supplies including texts, workbooks, and paper are estimated to rise by $157,000.
- Contractural services including lawyers, repair contracts and architectural fees will rise by $20,000.
- Insurance costs will increase by $80,000.

Hoedel said that the $400,000 difference between revenues and expenditures will be brought into balance when the board finally adopts the budget later this year. He estimated that the areas most likely to be cut to bring the budget in line would be in areas which least directly affect the education process.

"Equipment will not be replaced as rapidly, capital outlay items will be delayed and some maintenance projects will be held off," Hoedel said.

McCartney resigns PCDC post

PLYMOUTH—James McCartney, executive director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and the Plymouth-Canton Development Commission (PCDC), has resigned from the dual post.

McCartney, 38, has held the executive director positions since September 1974. He plans to form his own agency in southeastern Michigan to help corporations locate sites for industrial and commercial developments.

Although McCartney's resignation is effective immediately, he said he will be available to help out with the chamber and PCDC affairs until July 15.

JANET CURLEE, who came to the Chamber of Commerce last November will take over McCartney's duties in the chamber office until the chamber board of directors names a permanent replacement.

Since September, McCartney has served as liaison between the Chamber of Commerce and the PCDC, charged with attracting industry to the area. The chamber holds a one-year contract with the PCDC to provide services.

McCartney says he does not know if the PCDC board of directors will name a replacement.

"I'LL MISS it," McCartney said of his executive director positions. "I've certainly fallen in love with the area. There's a lot of potential. I hope they (the chamber and the PCDC) continue going in the same direction.

"Janet has a great deal of experience and background in the chamber of commerce area," he continued. "Whether they'll have someone else in the industrial development area, I don't know. That's up to the board of directors."

McCARTNEY, a resident of Westland, holds a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Arizona State University. He has taken specialized courses in industrial development from the University of Oklahoma and the Chamber of Commerce Institute.

McCartney served as manager of economic development for the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce from 1969 to 1974. He served as a Wayne County Commissioner, representing the City of Wayne, Westland, Garden City and Inkster, from 1970 to 1972. He also served as Westland's first economic development manager.

Board considers ordinance Tuesday

Canton works to save trees

By DARLENE STINSON

CANTON— An umbrella of leaves and treetops may one day shield the township from the sun's burning rays and earn Canton a spot of green on the Michigan map.

The board of trustees is expected to act Tuesday on a new tree ordinance to help preserve existing trees and demand the replacement of those that are removed.

THE PROPOSED ordinance was spearheaded by townshib Treasurer Carl Parsell, who borrowed provisions from three model ordinances to draft the proposed document.

The model ordinances are from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR), the Michigan Township Association and Michigan State University's Forestry Department.

"The ordinance is mainly directed toward subdivisions," Parsell explained, "because that's where the mass planning is. It's also trying to stop people from cutting down trees for firewood.

"We've been allowing builders to level everything when they build a development. Part of the intent of this ordinance is to stop subdivision developers from raping the trees. It's a shame when you buy a house, and the house is the highest thing in the area."

The ordinance was presented to the township board last week but tabled upon Supervisor Robert Greenstein's recommendation to allow township attorney Bert Burgoyne to amend some of the document's language.

Under the ordinance, subdivision developers must plant at least one tree near the street on every 75-foot lot and two trees on every lot exceeding a 75-foot frontage.

Parsell said a section also will be added to the ordinance to force developers to replace the equivalent number of trees that are destroyed during the course of development.

If a tree 10 inches in diameter is destroyed, the builder will have to plant five trees which are two inches in diameter somewhere in the township.

Under the ordinance, a plan to maintain and replace trees is a prerequisite to site plan approval and the issuance of a permanent certificate of occupancy. the township's approved tree list. Builders must replace only approved trees which were destroyed.

THE TREE LIST, borrowed from Wayne County, prohibits the planting of trees with poor growth habits, lack of durability and disease susceptibility. Among trees listed as "undesirable" are the elm, willow, box elder, birch, poplar, cottonwood and aspen.

"Everybody is going willy-nilly and putting anything between the sidewalk and the curb," Parsell said. "Some of these trees are a disservice to the community.

"Someday Canton will probably be a city. The city would have to maintain those trees. We don't want trees that are going to require a lot of trimming and cutting and that are going to break up sidewalks."

The builder, Parsell admits, will pass on the cost of trees to the home buyer. That cost, he says, will be minimal.

"I don't think it will raise the price of the home more than $50. I think everyone will be pleased afterwards. The first things young couples put in when they move into a house are the grass, furniture and shrubs. Last, if ever, is a tree. That tree won't be big until the kids get through college."

OTHER PROVISIONS prohibit the destruction of any tree in Canton Township without a permit. The ordinance outlines four exceptions to the rule:

- Owners of land parcels no larger than five acres may destroy trees on their land.
- Trees which threaten human life or property due to accidents or emergencies may be destroyed.
- Public service companies may destroy trees while performing normal construction and maintenance work which conform to federal or state safety or construction laws.
- The Canton Township Recreation Department and Department of Public Works may destroy trees while pursuing park management plans.

Other provisions protect the health of existing trees. The ordinance prohibits:

- The fastening of any sign or poster to a tree without a permit.
- The injuring of a tree from a deliberately set fire.
- The injuring of a tree from a toxic chemical.
- The deposit of any material which would impede the passage of water, air and fertilizer to the tree's roots.
- Failure to erect a protective barrier around trees and shrubs during building operations.
- The excavation of ditches or trenches within 15 feet of a tree without a permit.
- The movement of any building or large object that would break, injure, mutilate or kill any trees along a street without a permit.

THE ORDINANCE, Parsell believes, will beautify the township, increase community pride, and place Canton on the map.

"Hopefully, this will be one way to get pride in the community. I think we have to establish pride and an identity. We have to have something to grab on to.

"I think you're going to see community service groups and homeowner groups going out of their way to put in trees. We don't have too many things that public officials can encourage people to do. I'm hoping a lot of people will get involved."

Parsell said builders have already begun to cooperate with the proposed ordinance. Two builders, he said, have agreed to maintain and plant trees in their developments.

Chamber backs millage

PLYMOUTH—The board of directors of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the Plymouth Community School District's request for a 5.15 millage renewal.

The millage renewal question will appear on Monday's ballot along with a request to approve additional operating funds of .46 mill and the election of two persons to the Plymouth Community School Board.

"The board of directors feels it's very vital to have a strong school system," explained James McCartney, outgoing executive director of the chamber.

The board's endorsement, McCartney said, specifically names only the millage renewal issue.

Candidates discuss SC's obligation to district

What services should Schoolcraft provide to the community-at-large?

Candidates for the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees were asked what services the college should provide the community it serves beyond its main function of educating students.

Varied responses were received in an interview with the Observer & Eccentric with the candidates — Robert Cadotte, Ronald Cowden, Harry Greenleaf, Richard Hayward, Mark McQuesten — all of whom are Livonia residents. The sixth candidate, Jerome Harris of Livonia, has remained unavailable for interviews. He has a law firm in Livonia.

Voters will elect two candidates for six-year positions in the June 9 election. Residents eligible to vote are those living in the Livonia, Plymouth, Garden City, Clarenceville and Northville School Districts.

CADOTTE, a banking executive, says he doesn't think taxpayers would want to devote tax resources into making Schoolcraft a scientific resource or think-tank.

"I do think Schoolcraft ought to be a source of training personnel for para-professional services, such as medical technicians. The outreach to the community beyond that can be in the area of arts and music — the performing arts.

"These areas help make our communities more than a bedroom community. In this sense, Schoolcraft can help our suburbs find a sense of community to build upon and increase."

He believes the adult education classes offered are valuable because "if you limit the kinds of exposure, only one view or idea is presented. I favor diversity wherever possible."

Cadotte said there might be value to various groups offering adult programs getting together to avoid unnecessary duplication.

COWDEN, an assistant administrator for Livonia School District and incumbent on the Schoolcraft board, reports community service is expanding in all areas and pointed to a number of women's programs that are being developed.

"Persons change jobs six times in a lifetime and we need special retraining programs for workers. This is something Schoolcraft could provide — a step-in, step-out type of thing, maybe for only one semester."

Programs for the aged, who are stuck with time on their hands, is another area, Cowden says, has been started and should be expanded.

Cowden expressed disatisfaction with the student activities program on campus and said more activities, such as an ox roast, are needed. Also needed, he continued, are more events such as the culinary arts dinner which draw residents to the campus

Cowden believes adult education programs throughout the college district should be umbrellaed. "We must avoid duplication. One thing to remember is Schoolcraft gets reimbursed for its programs so the instructors get paid more. This should result in higher quality of instruction in programs the college offers."

GREENLEAF, who works in personnel for Ford Motor Co., comments that a performing arts center is a community service which is badly needed.

There are a lot of resource persons on campus who can be used, he says, but there is a danger that faculty becomes involved in too many community projects and a slippage in the quality of education offered results.

"The basic need is for the college to be a focal point for education for everyone during the hours and at locations convenient to the partakers of education."

Greenleaf also believes that if businesses have trouble hiring persons for certain jobs the businessmen should come to Schoolcraft and ask for help. Career training can then be updated so skill training is offered that can get jobs for students attending Schoolcraft, he adds.

On adult education programs, Greenleaf says normal supply and demand will determine which activities should be provided. "Those programs drawing students should be continued and those that don't will go away."

HAYWARD, executive vice president of Freedland Structural Steel Co., says Schoolcraft should go out into the community and sell itself.

"Whenever there's a college night at a high school, Schoolcraft should be represented. Adult education courses persons are interested in should be offered, but it should be distinguished from the academic part of the college.

"Community service shouldn't overshadow the basic tenents of a two-year college program, be it vocational or academic. But cultural activities are great and we don't have enough. Schoolcraft is a community college and groups are always looking for auditoriums for performances. A performing arts center would be a great asset to the area and is something worth working for."

MCQUESTEN, an insurance office manager, says Schoolcraft has a role in solving problems. "It can be a resource center for cities and local school districts to work together on problems.

"Schoolcraft can help redeem the community from its current bedroom community status.

"Another concern of mine is that young people today seem to have a lack of purpose. We must look to the college, church and government. I'd like to have Schoolcraft get ahold of kids and give them some purpose for life."

McQuesten also expressed concern that the Student Senate was falling apart. "North Central requires student representation for accreditation, so it's a big problem."

Wayne-Westland candidates air their views

Robert Reichard

WESTLAND—Improvement in students' reading skills and reintroduction of discipline into the classroom are goals of Robert Reichard, who is seeking another term as a Wayne-Westland Board trustee in the June 9 election.

Reichard, an employe of Commercial Carriers, is a member of Teamsters Local 299. He has been a representative and negotiator for the Teamsters for 18 years.

"Students can't learn without discipline. But, we need the cooperation of parents to make it work."

Although admitting disciplinary problems aren't as bad as they could be, the problem could get worse. He would like to see it dealt with before getting out of hand.

"One of the problems is that we don't know what is being hidden from the board."

Having served for 10 years on the board, Reichard says teaching students how to read had always been the big problem.

"I JUST CAN'T understand why we have students graduating who can't read. We have tried and tried, but we'll just have to work harder in the future."

Even though he is disturbed with reading progress, he applauds the efforts of reading consultants in helping those students who are having difficulties.

Last year's school strike, he says, should never have happened. He believes that be starting negotiations earlier in the year, a strike situation would be unnecessary. Proposals to have board members participate directly in negotiations have been "shot down" in the past, but he would like to see a higher level of participation by trustees.

ROBERT REICHARD

"We should be allowed to participate when things get hung up. As negotiations are run presently, we are getting two different stories. If board members were in the negotiations, there wouldn't be any lies."

Reichard thinks little of the bill now being considered by the state Legislature to solve the teacher strike question. He doesn't believe in the teachers being able to strike for 15 days without losing pay.

"If there is a strike, both sides should lose money. What's good for one is good for another."

Teachers should have the right to strike, he says, because it is useless to have a law that is unenforceable.

ALTHOUGH OPPOSING cross-district busing, Reichard says it isn't a matter of race, but rather a question of having something "shoved down your throat." He prides himself for his understanding of minority problems because he is part Apache Indian.

"When they start including all minorities groups in these laws, that's when I'll start supporting them. Look at what a rotten deal the Indians have gotten over the years."

Reichard expressed disappointment in the textbooks used to promote understanding of cultural groups.

"These textbooks are a bunch of garbage. I would like to see the kids get out and see how other cultures live. I'm not talking about spending millions of dollars, but an exchange program on a smaller scale should be worked out."

Reichard is proud of his record over the years, saying that he broke the barrier for having a Westland resident on the two-city board.

He believes his frankness and independence have proven valuable to the district's progress.

John Kendall

WESTLAND—Students should be taught in the classroom how to cope with the challenges and problems of everyday life, says John Kendall, a Westland resident running for election to the Wayne-Westland School Board.

Kendall, 47, believes the schools should be the focal point of the community. Many young persons, he says, feel inadequate and unprepared for meeting the challenges of the future. He says the schools should adjust their priorities to bring them in line with young persons and society in general.

A main thrust of education, he says, is to prepare the leaders of tommorrow.

"Parents are telling me that something is wrong. Their children aren't prepared," says Kendall. "We are graduating students who can't read or write."

Students in advanced grades having problems with education should be aided, as well as students in the younger grades.

"We need programs initiated to advance students' capabilities. We can't wait 10 years to graduate students who can read," he says.

THE DISTRICT HAS the capabilities to develop "comprehensive" programs to insure greater educational results. Students should be learning about such basics as how to seek a job and what is expected by an employer once a job is tackled, he says.

JOHN KENDALL

"Board members have to make some hard decisions. The object of education isn't to see how well teachers can teach. If a subject matter isn't beneficial then it should be changed," he says.

Labor negotiations should be the concern of the local community, says Kendall, and the state should keep out of the process. The bill now being considered by the Legislature dealing with teachers' strike is a political "fiasco," he says.

"The bill doesn't take the taxpayers into consideration. Board members should be involved in negotiations. It is their responsibility to resolve the issues," he says.

If teachers are dissatisfied with conditions in a district, they should go look for a job in another, he says.

He would advocate an advisory vote from residents in dealing with striking teachers.

THE LINES OF COMMUNICATIONS should be opened between educators and residents, he says, so that taxpayers feel more comfortable in presenting their complaints and wishes to board members.

"I can't condemn the present board in their performance, but there isn't enough communication. Plans for future programs should be better publicized. The budget can be broken down and made a little easier to understand," says Kendall.

While board trustees should be aware of the general financial situation of the district, they should be willing to let the everyday functioning of the system be handled by administrators.

Kendall is opposed to cross-district busing and says that the district has few racial problems.

"I haven't heard one iota of talk about problems involving racial incidents in the district. We are broad enough in the district to recognize ethnic backgrounds and respect differing beliefs and lifestyles," he says.

The district, he says, is without segregation.

Kendall is a product change analyst for the Ford Motor Company. He came to Westland in 1966. He believes his experience in business and industry will provide a needed balance to the board membership.

Anne Harbison

Mrs. Anne Harbison, now running for her second four-year term on the board of education of the Wayne-Westland school district, believes that money is the biggest problem facing the school district.

"Most of the things we want are tied to funding," she says. "Our biggest responsibility is to maintain our educational programs."

Mrs. Harbison also indicated particular concern with academic accountability, vocational education, the current bond issue, busing and contract negotiations.

She believes that "I am the only independent on the board," and adds "I'm not controlled by any pressure group which wants to control education.

"Taxpayers need to know who is affecting votes when a $25 million budget is involved. I am the only one never endorsed by a labor organization.

"When I receive an agenda I look at each issue individually and don't make hasty decisions. People respect me for reaching my decisions separately and trying to be consistent."

Mrs. Harbison is a believer in kids and says she is "anti-poor performance" — I also expect me to do a good job."

Accountability on the part of all those involved in the education picture is of high importance to her.

"I feel accountability has to begin with the board," she explains. "They set the policy for the whole school. But accountability is a responsibility shared among board members, administration and teachers.

ANNE HARBISON

"THE BOARD MUST ask whether we are providing the policies and working conditions to allow our employees to prepare children to have the kind of learning experiences we want them to have."

Mrs. Harbison recognized that teachers often "cringe" at the word, accountability. "However, they should not run from it if they are qualified," she says.

She feels the board has a role in helping teachers to become more accountable in the education of their students.

"We should provide inservice training for teachers to help them keep up with new methods and upgrade their skills.

"We need some kind of mutually agreed upon measurement to measure our students' progress. It should be an evaluation instrument the teachers, board and administration could share in developing.

"Everything in education should be teamwork. We can't have a situation where everyone is an adversary."

Mrs. Harbison is not satisfied with the vocational education in the Wayne-Westland district, particularly since 65 per cent of the students do not attend institutions of higher learning.

"What we are doing is good, but it is not good enough," she claims. "We are not giving enough training in job entry skills such as business education.

"FOR THIS REASON I am supporting the bond issue because a portion of that money will build an addition for vocational education at John Glenn High School."

She also is aware that the district has many buildings 15-25 years old in need of major repairs such as new roofs. Money for this would be obtained through the bond issue as would funds for recreational facilities.

"As the cost of gas goes up, people will want to have more recreation in their communities," she says. "They can use more local facilities if we have more of them."

Mrs. Harbison takes a stand against busing because she believes it is not a "wholesome way to achieve educational change."

However, having grown up in a multi-ethnic neighborhood, she thinks that social change can better be achieved by having many different groups live in the same attendance area.

Cliff Johnson

WESTLAND—Because of his experience in the building trades and familiarity with union matters, Cliff Johnson believes his election to the Wayne-Westland School Board on June 9 will be an asset.

Johnson, 47, the only candidate from Wayne, is a pipefitter. He has seved for three years on the Citizens Career and Vocational Education Committee. He is a Wayne Chamber of Commerce member.

He has also served on the Wayne City Board of Canvassars, has been chairman of the fundraising for the Christian Youth Camp, and has served as co-chairman for the Concerned Citizens Committee Against Cross-District Busing.

"We need persons on the board with expertise and experience in the vocational trades. I'm going to push for a new welding and auto shop," says Johnson.

JOHNSON, who served on the school's citizen advisory committee for building and maintenance, would like to see vocational education expanded to include physically handicapped students.

"Those kids deserve to have a chance to get into the vocational education program so they can be self-supporting."

Labor negotiations with the various bargaining units is the responsibility of the board trustees, Johnson believes.

"The board is supposed to call the shots. If something goes wrong during negotiations there isn't anyone else to blame but the board members."

He criticized two board trustees,

CLIFF JOHNSON

Fred Warmbier and Anne Harbison, for walking out during last year's negotiations. Mrs. Harbison is running for re-election in this campaign. Johnson says trustees are shirking their responsibility when acting that way.

He hopes to improve the negotiating atmosphere between board and teacher unions in future negotiations.

"If I have to take time off of work during negotiations, I will do it," he vows.

Although hoping that the state legislators soon will formulate a bill to alleviate the teacher strike issue, he believes responsible leadership on both sides of the table ultimately will solve the problem.

"The board has to quit playing politics. Trustees must be willing to begin the talks early."

BESIDES THE teachers' strikes, discipline in the classroom is one of the biggest problems facing the district, says Johnson.

"Discipline starts at an early age. We need the cooperation of the parents, adminstrators and teachers to bring discipline back to the classroom," he says.

An avid opponent to cross-district busing, Johnson believes children will learn naturally about other races and cultural groups as they grow up. This will happen especially if minority groups move into the area, he adds.

Trustees, he says, should be familiar with both money matters and curriculum innovations. They should be familiar with the kind of literature being used in the classroom and be willing to censor it, he says.

Johnson fears having too many educators on the board, believing a variety of persons should be members to represent the total community. Trustees Vince Petitpren and Thomas Barrett have teaching experience. Board candidate Agnes Greene is a retired teacher.

City hikes parking rates

PLYMOUTH—Some parking meters in downtown Plymouth will soon gobble nickels for 30 instead of 60-minute time slots.

The city commission Monday unanimously approved doubling the parking rates to offset the city's annual $30,000 deficit in the parking budget. Commission members authorized the purchase of new meter parts, estimated at $5 per meter, to carry out the rate change.

In addition, commission directed City Manager Fred Yockey to submit a detailed parking report at the commission's next meeting. Yockey will recommend no rate change for certain meters within the city and a method to allow downtown employes to park all day at a reduced rate.

THE INCREASED rates will offset the city's annual $30,000 deficit in the parking budget and create a surplus of $20,000.

"The cost of upkeep has risen, but the parking rates have not," explained Mayor Beverly McAninch. "We're, therefore, running a deficit. You realize that five-cent-an-hour parking isn't available anywhere."

The city will use the $20,000 surplus, created by the rate change, to beautify, restripe and resurface the parking areas, Mrs. McAninch said.

"None of these things have been done, and they have to be," she said.

BUSINESSMAN Ralph Lorenz noted the need for employe parking.

"There ought to be some plan where we can get a reward," he told commissioners. "The money shouldn't be taken from meters just for striping."

Yockey recommended doubling some of the meters' rates at the commission's May 20 meeting. His recommendation was one of three alternatives outlined in a parking report to eliminate the city's parking deficit. Other alternatives proposed increased rates in all parking lots and the metering of the entire central lot.

Yockey's recommendation was tabled to give businessmen a chance to respond to the proposal.

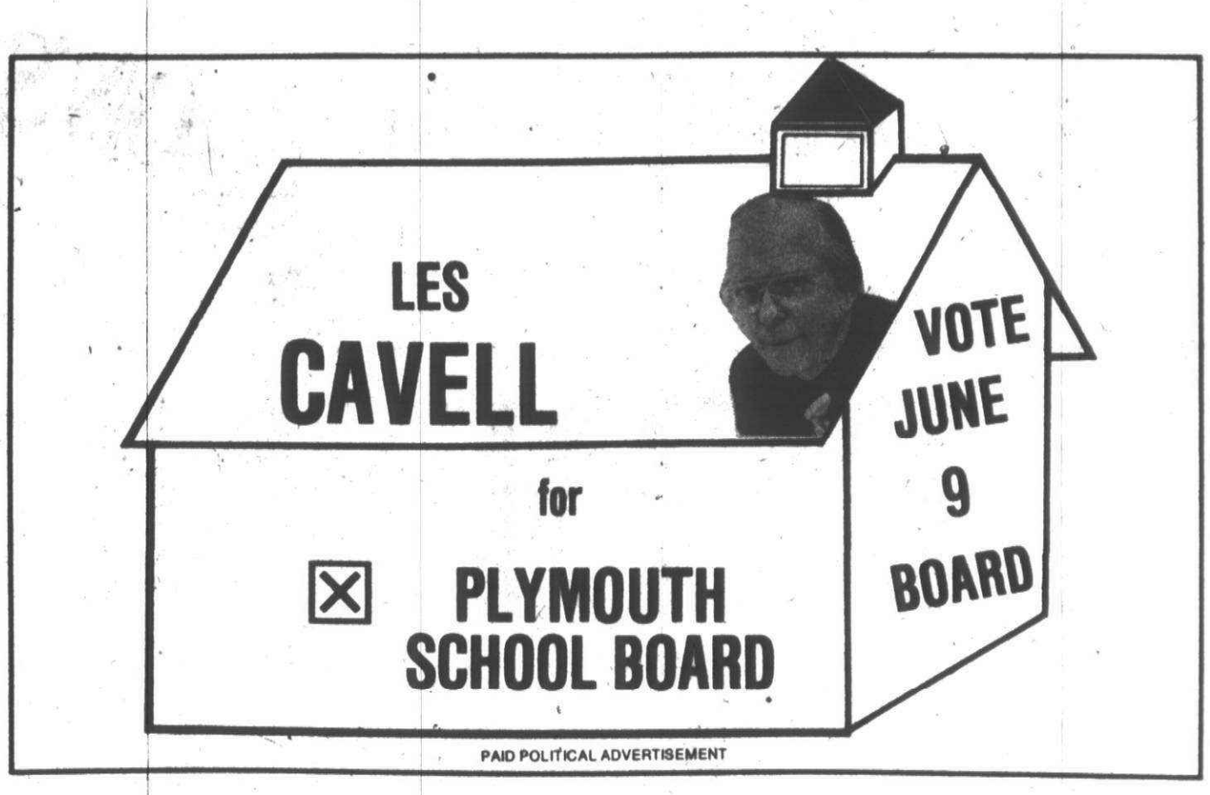
"The business community cannot endorse an increase in rate," said the Central Business Development Committee in a letter to the city. "There seems to be only one immediate solution to the problem of an overall parking deficit—to raise the rate to five cents per half hour.

"Looking at this solution from a businessman's standpoint, it is a poor solution to say the least," the letter said. "It must be remembered that a rate increase is not a solution, but a stop-gap measure that can only temporarily relieve the situation, and, unfortunately, set a precedent for the next increase."

BUSINESSMEN asked for certain parking improvements if the rate change takes effect, including lot resurfacing, lot restriping, a beautification program, reduced rates for employes, and reduced rates for merchant validation stickers.

"As unpopular as it may be, we can't continue running a deficit," said Commissioner Norbert Battermann, who made the motion in favor of Yockey's recommendation.

Yockey said the new rates will probably go into effect in about 30 days—the time needed to change the meters' timing systems.



Bike trails planned

CANTON—Miles of potential bike, jogging, and motorcycle trails lie hidden beneath the corridor of steel Detroit Edison towers that span the township's middle.

Township officials are hoping to gain miles of additional recreational land from the corridor that runs north of Cherry Hill between Haggerty and Sheldon and turns south to Michigan Avenue.

Negotiations to lease the land are now under way with Detroit Edison, according to Supervisor Robert Greenstein, and a lease is expected "any day."

Under provisions of the lease, expected to cost the township $1 a year, the township will have to maintain liability insurance and mow the grass beneath the towers.

"It would open up miles of recreational land in the township," said Greenstein. "We'd probably use the land for a combination of uses, and it'll be a community project to made the trails. We hope to get it started as soon as possible."

Jogging, bike, bridle and motorcycle trails could be built in various sections of the corridor, the supervisor said.

Reward offered in park vandalism

CANTON—A $1,000 reward is being offered by the Carriage Hill Homeowners Association for the arrest and conviction of vandals who destroyed playground equipment in one of the subdivision's playgrounds over the weekend.

Bob Shefferly, president of the group, said tar had been spread on the slides and merry-go-round, chains for the swings had been cut, and the seats thrown into a near-by sewer.

"The monkey bar equipment was also ruined by someone cutting through the bars and bending them," Shefferly said.

Pursell battles Detroit plan on State Police base

Suburban legislators, police chiefs and other officials were scheduled to be in a showdown fight this morning on a Detroit plan to scuttle a State Police district headquarters and crime lab that has long been planned for Northville Township.

The Detroit plan, which apparently has the support of Mayor Coleman Young and some Democratic legislators, calls for the 2nd district headquarters to be built "somewhere on the Wayne State University campus facing the expressway," according to State Rep. Richard Young (D-Dearborn Heights).

Not only is State Sen. Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth) opposed to the Detroit plan as a practical measure, but he is angry at the exclusionary political tactics of Dick Young.

SCENE OF THE battle was to be the Joint Capital Outlay Committee, composed of four senators and four representatives. Chairman is Rep. Russell Hellman (D-Dollar Bay).

Pursell notes the State Police's 2nd district includes most of southeast Michigan—Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair, Washtenaw and Monroe counties—and that Detroit is far from the center of that district.

"Land was transferred from Northville State Hospital to the state police three years ago," said Pursell.

The Legislature last year appropriated $1 million for planning, architects' fees and part of the construction cost, he said, and ground was actually broken on the Seven Mle Road site between Haggerty and Northville roads west of the hospital.

"Suburban police chiefs want it. Col. George Halerson, director of the State Police, is committed to it Gov. William Milliken is committed," said Pursell.
the state police, is committed to it. Gov. Milliken is committed," said Pursell.

THE DETROIT plan came to light late last week in a letter which Rep. Dick Young wrote to Detroit's Mayor Young and circulated to Detroit news media, United Auto Workers officials, the president of Wayne State University and the black community's Michigan Chronicle.

Omitted from the list, Pursell noted, where suburban officials and such suburban media as the Northville Record and Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Rep. Young's letter indicates that political plans were developed in a "caucus...of the Democratic members of Wayne County." Omitted from that caucus were the two legislators in whose districts the Northville site lies—Sen. Pursell and Rep. R. Robert Geake, both Republicans.

YOUNG'S LETTER says these "benefits would accrue for the City of Detroit" though it makes no direct arguments against the Northville site:

- "500 to 600 police officers would use the post... and this would act as a crime deterrent because many police cars would be going to and from the headquarters."
- "When funds do become available for the crime lab work for the City of Detroit (which operates its own crime lab), the work could be performed on an efficient basis without necessitating Detroit police officers to travel all the way to Northville..."
- "There are many citizen visitors to the State Police headquarters, and the businessmen in the surrounding area would benefit from the people coming and going to the police headquarters."
- "It would be an incentive for state employes to locate in the City of Detroit for residential purposes."
- "The black community within the City of Detroit might very well associate on a closer basis with the State Police personnel, and this could help alleviate the problem of recruiting black officers. It is my understanding that within the 2,100 state police personnel, there are presently only 33 minorities."
- The crime lab would be "a plus for the (Wayne State) university, which might very well want to deal more extensively in police administration curriculum."

PURSELL SAYS the Northville site is actually more centrally located than a WSU site would be for the six counties that are to be served.

The Northville site would be near the intersection of I-96, M-14 and M-275 freeways, and traffic would be far lighter than around the WSU-area freeways, the most congested in southeastern Michigan, he adds.

"The suburbs have more population than Detroit. If they want to argue 'one man, one vote,' I'll argue it," said Pursell.

As for the presence of a State Police headquarters being a visible crime deterrent, Pursell said experience shows it simply isn't so.

Scout-O-Rama is Saturday

Some 20,000 Detroit Area Council Cubs, Scouts and Explorers will open SCOUT-O-RAMA '75 at the Michigan State Fairgrounds on Saturday, June 7.

The American Heritage Bicentennial Parade will march down Woodward Avenue to Seven Mile at 11:30 a.m. Following the opening flag raising ceremonies at the State Fair bandshell, SCOUT-O-RAMA will be officially open to the public.

Tickets are available from all Cubs, Scouts and Explorers.

More than 500 packs in the Detroit area will have demonstrations and displays for the more than 150,000 persons expected to attend the weekend show on June 7, 8. Displays will cover everything from conservation to rocketry, physical fitness to boat building.

Candidates differ on size, makeup of S'craft board

Candidates for the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees differ on the optimum size of the board and whether members should be elected at-large or by district.

The issue was included in a questionnaire sent all candidates by the Livonia League of Women Voters. All six candidates responded.

Seeking election to two six-year seats are Robert W. Cadotte, Ronald Cowden, Harry Greenleaf, Jerome Harris. Richard Hayward and Mark McQuesten.

The candidates were asked: "Do you believe the size of the Schoolcraft board or the way it is elected (at-large vs. district) should be changed?"

CADOTTE answered: "I believe the board of trustees should consist of seven members elected at large. At-large elections eliminate the need for a larger board to achieve proportionate representation. An odd number provides a means for majority decisions where differences of opinion arise."

COWDEN responded: "I believe in a seven-member board and at- large elections as recommended by the Michigan Association of Community Colleges. A seven-member board avoids tie votes and keeps size at a workable level. If we should adopt a district concept, I believe college elections would be subject to political gerrymandering and partisan manipulation."

GREENLEAF said: "Yes on size. My preference is nine because it increases rather than diminishes representation and would continue to require five board members to pass issues. A seven-member board would reduce number required for passage to four. We should continue at large elections to avoid potential difficulties in apportioning districts."

HARRIS commented: "No. If made large, too unwieldy."

HAYWARD replied: "At the present time, I don't believe the size or method of the board should change. I believe the most important thing about the board should be the caliber of people who serve on it."

MCQUESTEN answered: "A change from the present eight-member board to nine members is advisable. The present at-large election process dictates that Livonia will dominate the board to the exclusion of the smaller districts. A change to district elections for five trustees, with the balance elected at large, is also advisable."

MCQUESTEN, 25, of 15377 Garden, Livonia, is a graduate of Bentley High and received an associate degree from Schoolcraft.

He is office manager for Amroian Insurance Agency in Dearborn, member of the Livonia Youth Commission, director of the Optimist Club of Livonia, served in advisory capacity to presidents Dr. Eric J. Bradner and Dr. C. Nelson Grote of Schoolcraft, and has regularly attended board meetings for the past five years.

HAYWARD, 46, of 17159 Loveland, Livonia, is a high school graduate and attended Assumption College.

He is executive vice-president of Freedland Structural Steel Co. in Livonia. He has worked with youth of community college age, has varied business experience which includes labor relations, finance and construction.

HARRIS, 61, of 16844 Shrewsbury Court, Livonia, earned his law degree from Detroit College of Law.

He has a law office in Livonia, served as a member of the U.S. Draft Board for 20 years and is a member of the American Arbitration Association.

GREENLEAF, 38 of 35936 Pinetree, Livonia, earned a degree in management engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

He hs been an organization specialist on the operations staff of Ford Motor Co. for the past 16 years. He has been involved in civic, political and church leadership positions. He has been an evening instructor for Henry Ford Community College and Hudson Valley Community College and was a member of a commission to determine goals for Rensselaer through 1968.

COWDEN, 34, of 15577 Westbrooke, Livonia, is a graduate of Livonia Bentley High, earned a bachelor's degree from Western Michigan University, a master's degree in educational administration from Eastern Michigan University and is a postgraduate student at the University of Michigan.

Cowden is administrative assistant to the superintendent of the Livonia School District, was high school student activities director and assistant principal, and has been on the Schoolcraft board since 1973. He is a former member of city recreation and planning commissions and has been active in community projects.

CADOTTE, 49, of 30125 Grandon, Livonia, was graduated from the University of Detroit Law School, received the standard certificate from the American Institute of Banking, and was graduated from the University of Wisconsin school of banking.

He was an instructor for the American Institute of Banking, is executive vice-president of Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit and a director of Manufacturers Bank of Livonia, and has been a member of the Schoolcraft College Foundation since 1967, serving now as second vice-president.

Residents in the Livonia, Plymouth, Garden City, Clarenceville and Northville school districts will vote on Schoolcraft trustees Monday, June 9.

Polls will be open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

More prizes listed for fishing derby

More prizes have been announced for the annual young anglers fishing derby June 21 on Newburgh Lake.

BEST TROUT will earn for the fisherman a unicycle from an anonymous donor. If no trout are caught, a winner will be selected from all entrants who have caught their limits of 25 panfish.

The contest is open to boys and girls, competing together, between 6 and 16. It begins at 7 a.m. and runs until noon, although contestants may begin or stop any time during that period.

All contestants must register before beginning to fish. They may register the morning of the derby or save fishing time by registering in advance by a post card sent to the contest chairman, Hank Chruscial, 19345 Brentwood, Livonia, 48152.

Owens named chairman of dystrophy fight

Steve Owens, fullback for the Detroit Lions, has been named chairman of the 1975 Fight Against Muscular Dystrophy.

Joining Owens in the campaign is Brian Morrison, 10-year-old muscular dystrophy poster child.

The two began the campaign by leading a five-county fund-raising effort on June 3. The campaign will see more than 30,000 volunteers going door-to-door asking for donations to help find a cure for muscular dystrophy.

Owens, fullback and Heisman Trophy winner, appeals to residents of southeastern Michigan to be generous in making contributions.

Hamilton settles suit

FARMINGTON HILLS — Hamilton International Corporation has agreed to settle a lawsuit brought against it and its former president, E. Keith Owens, formerly of Plymouth.

The suit arose out of the failure of Owens to purchase some 100,560 shares of common stock of the company from Tomlinson I. Moseley of Atherton, Calif., for a total purchase price of almost $1.5 million pursuant to a written agreement.

Under the settlement with Moseley, Hamilton International will purchase the shares, plus an additional 25,000 shares Owens had deposited as security for the performance of his obligations to Moseley. The purchase price is $1.875 per share, the mean between the bid and asked prices for Hamilton International common stock on May 22, 1975, for a total purchase price of $235,427.

Hamilton also agreed to pay Moseley $389,573, of which $64,573 will be paid in cash and the balance payable pursuant to a five-year six per cent convertible subordinated note in the principal amount of $325,000. Moseley will assign all his rights against Ownes to Hamilton International as part of the settlement.

In May 1969, Owens signed an agreement with Moseley to purchase the 100,560 shares. Owens defaulted in his obligations which became due in June 1973 and 1974.

The shares being sold by Moseley were part of the 316,560 shares issued to him by Hamilton International in connection with its acquisition of 143 acres of land on the Island of St. Croix in the Virgin Islands in May 1969.

Hamilton subsequently started construction of a hotel on a portion of the land, but construction was halted in 1971 because of lack of funds. The land and project are presently for sale.

Richard H. Headlee, president of Hamilton International, says that with the settlement of this litigation, the only other major litigation involving the company is a class action in Philadelphia. A proposed settlement of that suit has been reached with approval by the court presently pending.

Esch urges stop to ozone depletion

WASHINGTON DC — U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor), whose 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth, has called for prompt action on his bill to halt the depletion of ozone in the upper atmosphere.

The Esch bill would authorize an intensive two-year study of the effects of fluorocarbons, commonly known as Freon, used as propellants in aerosol spray cans.

ESCH, ranking Republican member of the subcommittee on the environment and the atmosphere which is holding hearings on the legislation, stresses the need for an orderly process in which various federal agencies undertake a coordinated and comprehensive study.

A definitive procedure for showing in the field what is believed to have been proven in the laboratory must be developed, he says. A strong regulatory program must also be devised, Esch adds.

Esch was the first congressman to work on legislation of this type and introduced his bill last year as soon as research at the University of Michigan indicated ozone depletion might be resulting from aerosol cans.

ESCH invited Dr. Ralph Cicerone from U-M as a witness before the committee.

MAYFLOWER HOTEL BLDG.
827 ANN ARBOR TRAIL at MAIN • PLYMOUTH

It is a wealth of fine old traditions that cause people to cherish, respect and cling fast to time-honored institutions. Other things may change, may lose their luster or vanish entirely with the passing of the years, but the traditions of old progressively conservative institutions stand out above this shining scene.

What are these traditions and how have they come into being? They are the basic ideals upon which these institutions were founded, now solidified and crystalized by unswerving adherence through successive generations. Time has incorporated them as integral parts of the institution.

The same process is found in the evolution of great social and commercial institutions as well. The ideals which inspired founders and drew us to Lent's Men's Clothing and the traditions formed by many years of unshaken fidelity with the ideals of courtesy, quality, genuine worth and fair dealing remain unchanged.

The spirit and ideals have now become traditions, but a business that never ventures from the beaten path cannot develop its full possibilities. Real progress begins where rules leave off. The follower cannot be the leader. The store that would grow and prosper in an impressive way must set the pace.

Lent's has always been HOME OWNED, the Owners of this fine store always lived in the Plymouth Area, taking part in Civic affairs.

Today the Plymouth business world is readjusting itself to meet the conditions of a new period. We, too, find it necessary, compulsory, if you please, to increase our business to meet today's existing conditions.

How SC age shift affects instructors

The change in student composition at Schoolcraft College has its effect on how instructors perform in the classroom.

The shift to a part-time, more mature student body has made a difference, said Ms. Gina Smith of Elmwood Street, Garden City. She has taught psychology part-time at the college for three semesters and serves as coach of the school's cheerleading squad.

She recently made observations on teaching the older returning student based on experiences in the Schoolcraft Instructional Center at Middle Belt and Florence Street in Garden City.

GINA SMITH
teacher & coach

TEACHING AT the college level requires a commitment to meeting the intellectual and psychological needs of students, a fortitude to pursue higher education to bring more knowledge to students, and a sensitivity to relate to students' diverse personalities, she said, in way of background.

"However, instructing the mature college student is more than a challenge—it is the knowledge you are helping develop each student's potential to become a productive member of society."

Students returning to college after many years of "life experience," she explained, don't accept compact textbook answers to their numerous questions. "They realize that facts which we accept as truths today may be disproven tomorrow.

"In contrast to my educational experience when a professor's ideas weren't disputed, I am disputed. However, although I may be proven wrong, many times I have helped students find answers to questions pertaining to child rearing practices, everyday human relations or life in general.

"College is more than academic learning—it is a social environment where feelings, ideas and goals are expressed, shared and evaluated."

STUDENTS ARE competitive, Ms. Smith added, but also selective in what they want to learn to function in their jobs, homes or society.

Student comments are heard such as: "We know what is required, but we don't have the skills needed to function in our jobs"... "Can you meet our needs?"..."Can you give us practical knowledge?"..."Are you accountable for what is learned or not learned in the classroom?"

"Many life experiences aren't measured on a standarized or essay test," they've said. "There are social problems that you don't have an answer for, but you can show us where to begin to seek our research, conduct experiments and help us in our search for knowledge."

Traditional methods of teaching the adult students are of little consequence, she addeds.

"They excell academically because their motivation is high and they are responsible, logical and reasoning adults.

"Women returning to school after raising a family or while raising one can apply theories of child development and see relationships between subject matter in textbooks and real life situations.

"PERHAPS instructors, especially those dealing with the mature college student, need to ask themselves: 'Am I willing to use all my faculties, talents, knowledge and perhaps change some of my views to meet the special needs of these students?'

"I welcome the older student," she said. "They give me an opportunity to expand my horizons, to learn and explore areas new to me, and, hopefully, they help me become a better and more knowledgeable instructor."

In 1964, when Schoolcraft had 2,018 students, 57 per cent of its student body attended full-time, and 62 per pent were male. The enrollment trend shifted in 1969, with 5,150 students enrolled, when full-time students made up only half the total.

In 1971, 57 per cent of the student body of 6,020 attended part-time, and 61 per cent were males. In 1973, 66 per cent of the 8,540 students enrolled attended part-time, and 43 per cent were female.

The number of average credit hours taken has been decreasing since 1970 with the average student load in 1973 being 8.5 credit hours. The percentage of transfer students has declined from 67 per cent in 1966 to 45 per cent in 1973, while the career students have increased from 33 per cent in 1966 to 55 per cent in 1973.

HUD gives assurances on block grant funding

By EMORY DANIELS

WASHINGTON, DC—Maximum decision-making at the local level is allowed under the Community Development Act of 1974, but communities applying for the federal funds still must comply with provisions of the act.

In summary, that is the answer given to U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor) by David Meeker, assistant secretary for community planning and development, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Esch, whose 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth, had written Meeker earlier to make sure the congressional intent of allowing local decision-making was being recognized by HUD.

The communications began after meetings between Esch with officials from Livonia, Plymouth, Canton Township and Redford Township in late April of this year.

"Although the answers I have receive aren't completely satisfactory," Esch reported, "HUD does recognize that the congressional intent of this legislation is to allow for maximum decision-making at the local level."

MEEKER WROTE Esch that: "The development of an application and the activities proposed are entirely local determinations, provided that the activities meet the objectives of the act.

"The act provides that the 'sole responsibility' and authority for the development of the application and execution of the community development program rests exclusively with qhe applicant."

The block grant funding provides federal money for housing, recreation, drainage and other uses. It combines into a single act separate block grant programs which were administered by different federal agencies before 1974.

A stir was caused in the Detroit area in April when the Coalition for Block Grant Compliance—a housing lobbying group located in Detroit—issued a report charging 26 suburbs with violating requirements of the act.

THE COALITION charged a number of suburbs had failed to include in their housing plans provisions for persons working in the suburbs but living elsewhere.

Towards the end of May, the coalition filed formal complaints with HUD asking that the suburban applications be amended to comply with the law's requirements. The national office responded by ordering the Detroit HUD office not to approve any Community Development Act applications until formally investigating the complaints.

About this time, local officials met with Esch in Washington, along with HUD officials, to determine the fate of their applications and the role of the coalition in qhe application review process.

The coalition is an unincorporated, non-profit association of these 13 groups: Coalition to End Discrimination in Housing; Coordinating Council on Human Relations; Detroit Branch, NAACP; Inter-Faith Centers for Racial Justice, Inc.; League of Women Voters of the Detroit Metropolitan Area; Michigan Committee on Law and Housing; Greater Detroit Section, National Council of Jewish Women; Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit; Committee on Social Ministry, Michigan Synod, Lutheran Church of America; City of Detroit Human Rights Department; Concerned Citizens of Warren; Hamtramck Peoples Community Services, and Macomb County NAACP.

The coalition was organized in November 1974 to assure full compliance with the housing and civil rights requirements of the Community Development Act.

HUD WILL APPROVE local applications, Meeker wrote Esch, unless:

- HUD determines an applicant's description of housing needs and goals is plainly inconsistent with significant facts and data generally available and pertaining to the community.
- HUD determines, on the basis of the application, that activities to be undertaken are plainly inappropriate to meeting the needs and goals identified by the applicant.
- HUD determines the applicant doesn't comply with requirements of the act or proposes activities which are ineligible under the act.

Meeker further explained that HUD won't dictate specific types of housing to be included in individual programs, and specifically stated there is no requirement that a community must plan to utilize the Section 8 program administered by HUD.

The Section 8 program provides a consumer with a rental subsidy based on his income and the number of dependents he has. The program covers new construction, rehabilitated older puildings, and existing units as well as new mobile homes.

"There are other programs which may be useful in given circumstances," Meeker explained, "such as state-assisted programs, rehabilitation and code enforcement to meet housing needs.

"THE IMPORTANT FACTOR is that the community must establish a program of providing housing assistance best suited to the needs of lower income persons in the community.

"Failure to provide such a plan may be cause for disapproval of the entire block grant application," Meeker said.

Applicants will be given the chance to revise their applications to correct deficiencies before disapproval during the 75-day review period, Meeker added.

The coalition's role in the review process is the same as any citizen's who wishes to speak during public hearings or submit written comments, he said.

While a community must make provisions for citizen participation and make information available to citizens and groups, Meeker said these requirements don't include concurrence by any person or group involved in the participation process in making final determinations.

Travelers ready for summer of learning abroad

As an English teacher at Stevenson High School, Dr. Gerald Sima of Livonia felt there was a better way for students to learn other than from textbooks, lectures and films.

In 1969 he took the first group of 69 Livonia students and parents to Europe for 42 days. The group visited eight countries, and the experience was invaluable, says Dr. Sima.

Every year since, he has returned with residents from Livonia, Plymouth, Birmingham, Southfield and Redford Township, and Detroit.

"Education is much more than reading a book," says Dr. Sima. "Traveling gives people the chance to see and feel what they have been studying about for years in the classroom."

Dr. Sima's yearly trek is part of the Consortium for International Education (CIE), a program designed to introduce foreign lands and cultures—to go beyond the confines of a textbook.

Dr. Sima is CIE consultant in Michigan and a proponent of international education. He is presently director of student teaching and an education professor at Mercy College of Detroit. He wrote his doctoral dissertation on the administration of international education in 1970. He received his PhD from the University of Michigan.

There are about 12 seats left for this summer's tour which begins June 26 and ends July 23. Travelers will visit Florence, Lucerne, Munich, Salzburg, Paris, London and a number of optional excursions offered.

"If travelers wish, they can take high school, undergraduate and graduate courses," Dr. Sima explains. "Mercy College is offering five-credit courses in art and allied health services. Art students will explore some of Europe's most outstanding museums and health students will visit health facilities with members of the Mercy nursing department."

Other courses offered include history, vocational education and humanities.

For those who don't want to take classes, the trip itself is a learning experience, says Dr. Sima.

"Once a person has traveled with CIE, many choose to return because of the richness of the European encounter, or friends they've made, or because they've been bitten by the travel bug."

George Konar, 20, of Livonia, is taking his second trip this year.

Konar says the highlight of last year's excursions were the European discotheques, Rome, and the overnight train rides. "One day we were having a snowball fight in the Swiss Alps and the same afternoon we were paddle boating and swimming in Lake Geneva."

Dr. Sima's 16-year-old sister, Robin, is taking her second trip and his mother, Noreen, is going back for the sixth time.

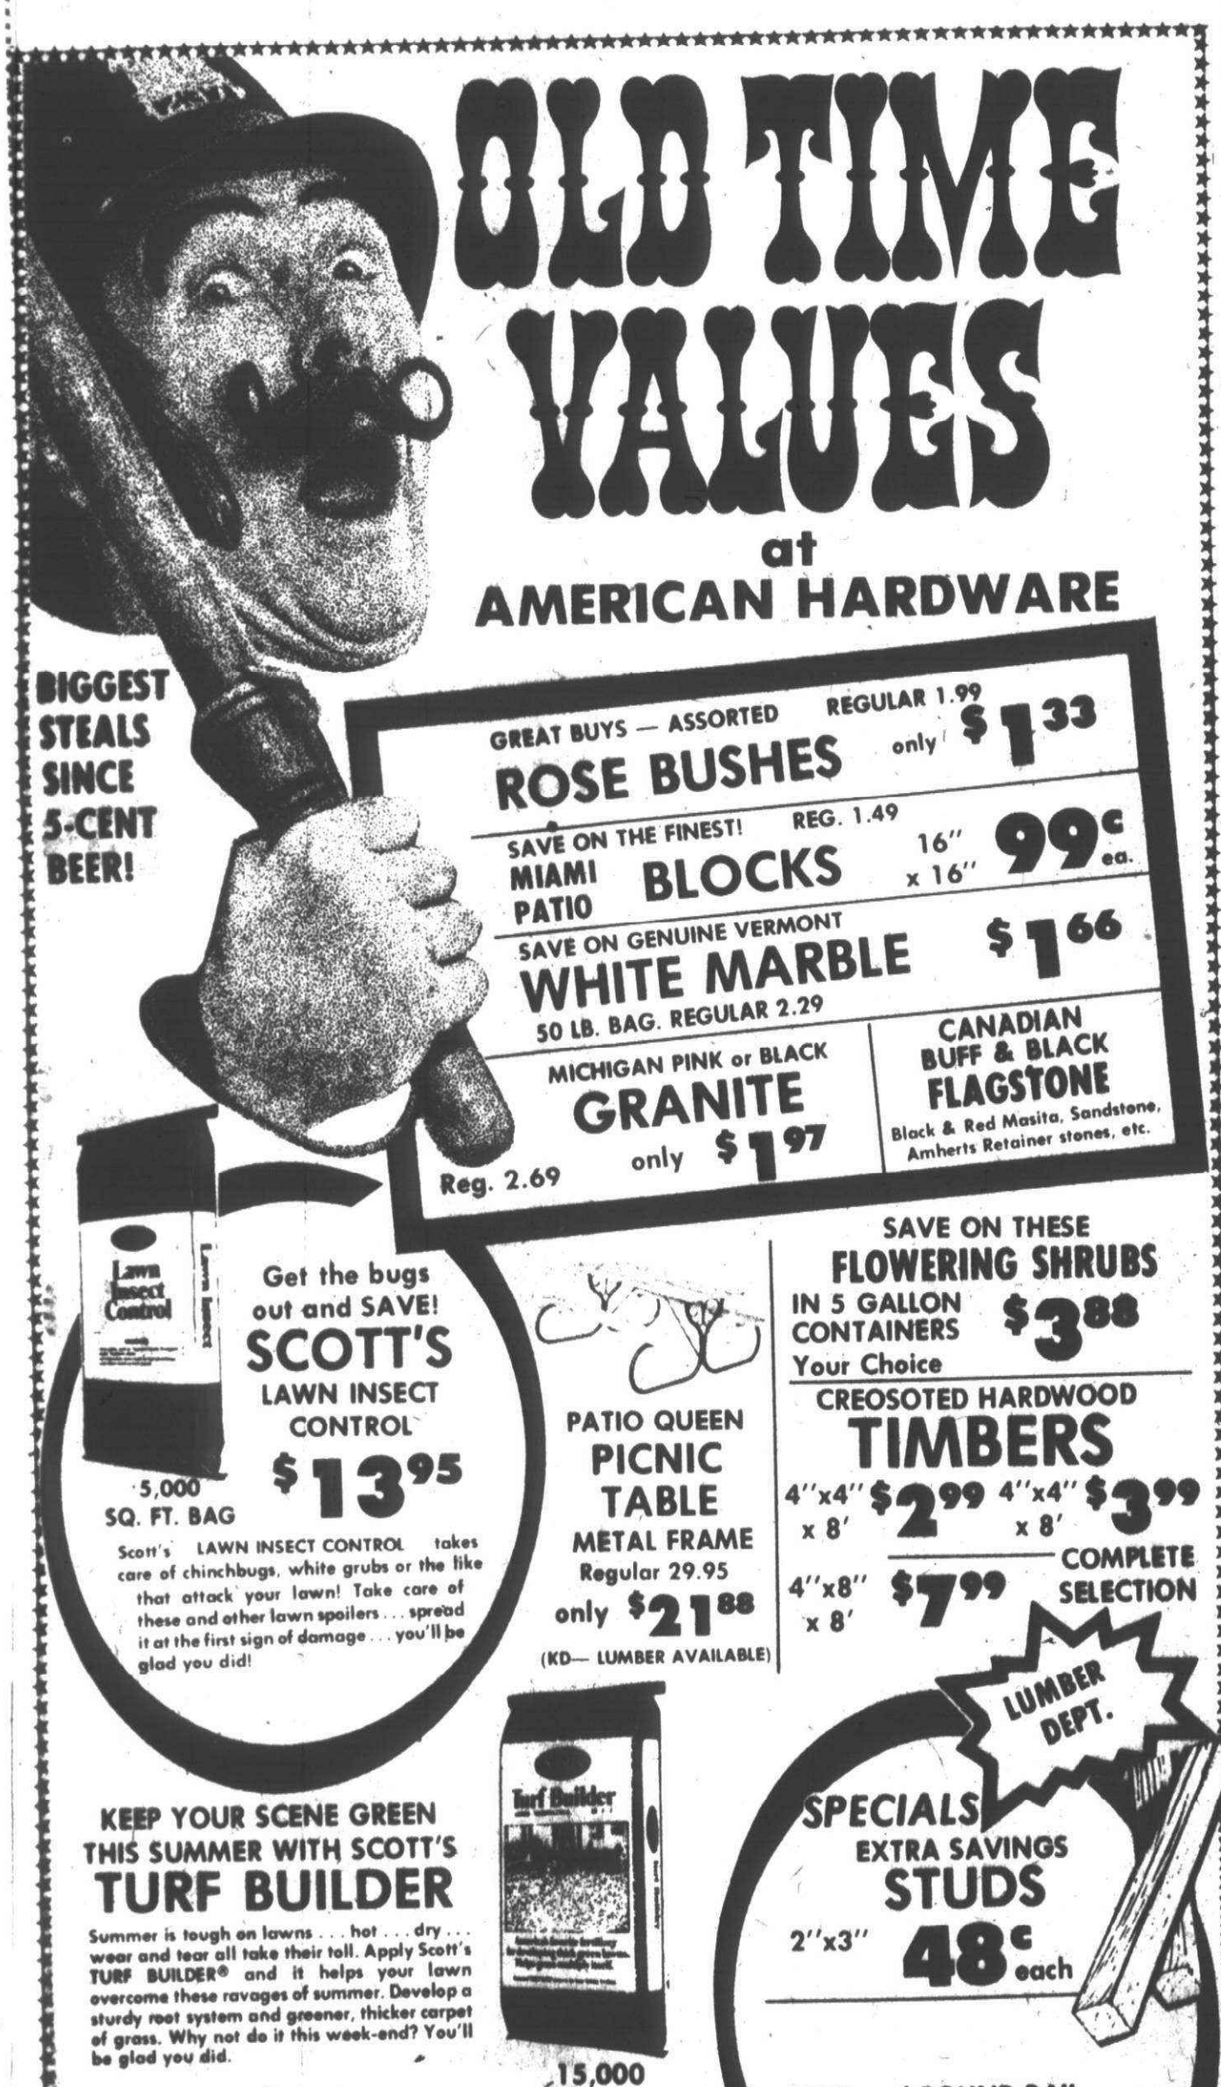
Mrs. Morothy Trosko, an English teacher at Stevenson High School recently renewed her passport for the fifth time.

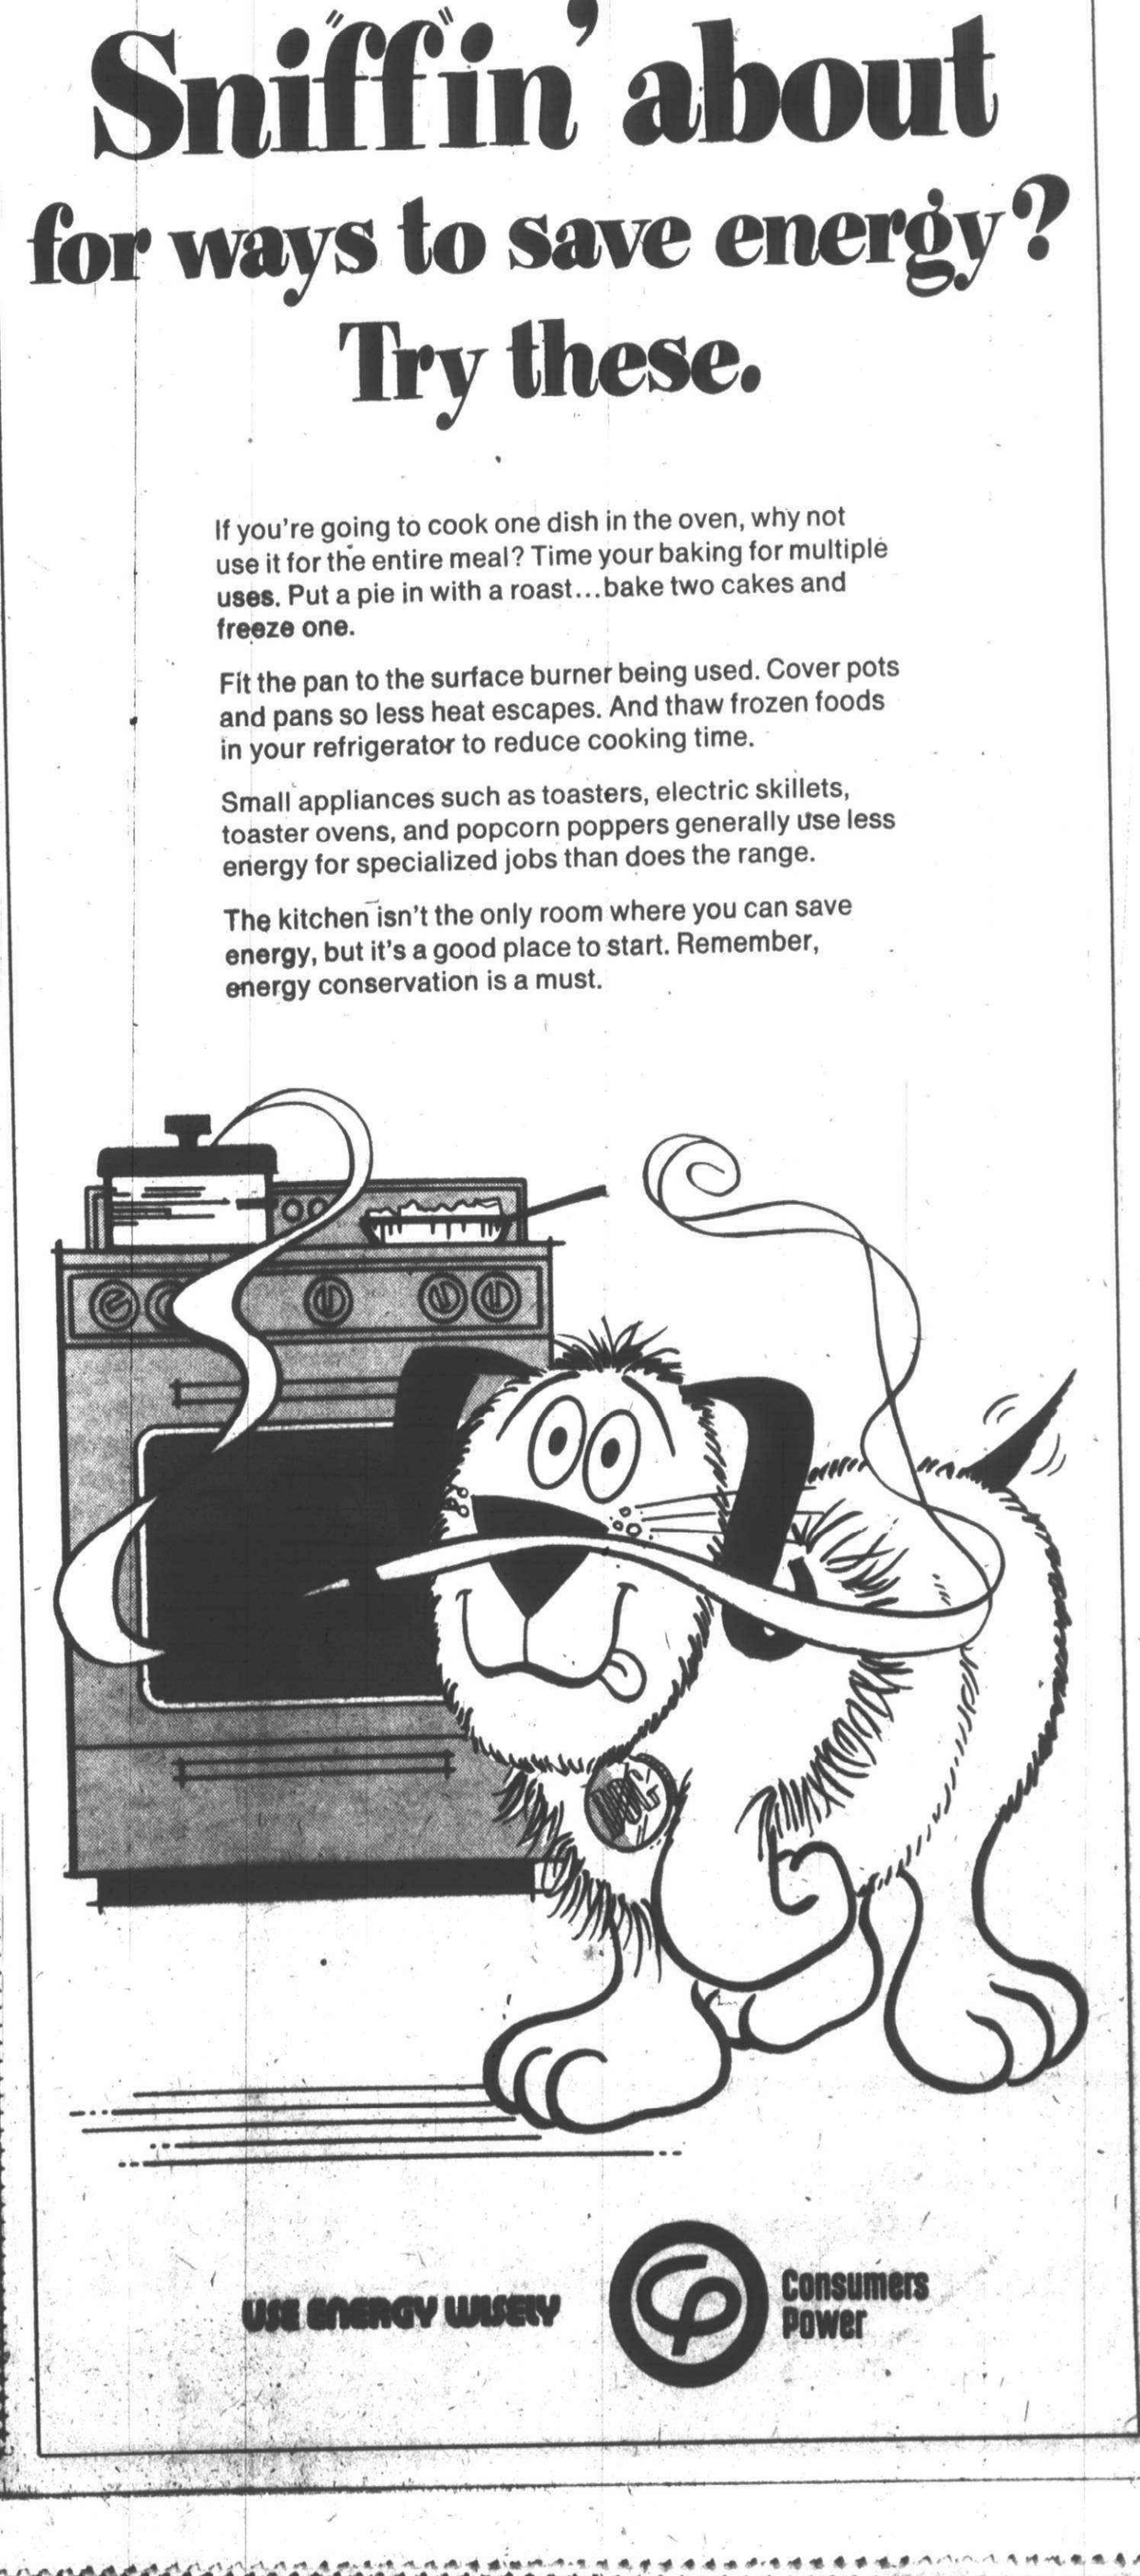
"These tours enable me to teach my English classes with a knowledge and perspective that no amount of university training can provide," Mrs. Trosko.

Andrea Bassett of Plymouth, an art major at Michigan State University says, this is her first trip and she "can't wait."

Cost of the CIE program is lower than commercial travel, because the CIE owns it own plane and is a non-profit organization, says Dr. Sima.

Persons interested in the tour should contact Dr. Sima, 16909 Shrewsbury Court, Livonia. An orientation will be held Friday, June 6 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in Dr. Sima's home. "Everyone is welcome to attend," says Mr. Sima.





5 Schoolcraft candidates unusually good

Because Schoolcraft College is a community college, it is important to elect trustees who envision Schoolcraft serving as many persons as possible within the district.

The Observer & Eccentric fully endorses Harry Greenleaf for the board because we believe he is the candidate having the best grasp of the college's function.

Our conclusion was reached after interviewing each candidate individually, attending candidates' nights and listening to the concerns of the public, and relying on our coverage of the Schoolcraft board of trustee meetings.

GREENLEAF FULLY understands that Schoolcraft is becoming more attuned to a part-time, career-oriented, older student body. He recognizes this sudden shift from a full-time, younger student population is a critical change which requires re-evaluation of programs and approaches to ensure that what is being done meets the needs of an evolving Schoolcraft. We believe his experience in this vein and his insistence on continual reassessments are correct.

Greenleaf also is sensitive to the dangers of serving on a board and listening to only an administrative viewpoint. He is cognizant of a trustee's boundaries in meddling in the day-to-day affairs of the school.

As a trustee, one of his greatest assets will be his insistence on long-range planning instead of becoming bogged down in year-to-year planning.

WE GIVE qualified support to Ronald Cowden, who has completed his first term on the board. He is a generally well-informed, moderate member genuinely interested in board business.

Cowden's weakness is that he thinks like an educational administrator, which he is, and tends to espouse the administration's viewpoint. But there are others on the board who don't, and Cowden's presence gives balance.

His strengths are commitments to community programs for women, elderly persons, displaced workers, and to activities which draw residents to the campus.

With one term under his belt, Cowden, we hope, will become more independent and begin to have greater influence in improving student activities, community service, and local school district-college liaison programs.

MARK McQUESTEN knows more about the inner workings of the college than any other candidate, and in this is a qualified candidate.

If elected, McQuesten would make a good voice for the Faculty Forum, but voters must ask whether he would make a good voice for them.

ROBERT CADOTTE is to be commended for his involvement with the college, serving on the Schoolcraft Foundation for the past seven years as a member and officer. He would bring to the board a professional approach and different career background as a banker, but in this race he lacks the political savy of others.

RICHARD HAYWARD has been a refreshing candidate in his enthusiasm and sincerity. We would encourage him to become better grounded in the whys and wherefores of the college and to seek election at some further date.

These five are an unusually good field of candidates, and we congratulate each for his interest.

editorial opinion

Plymouth board needs experience, balance

Experience in working with the problems in a growing school district like Plymouth is important when considering a choice for two members of the school board.

Balancing a budget that grows by more than 15 per cent each year and making room for 500 or more new students each fall require a sense of perspective that only those who have worked closely with the school district can fully appreciate or understand.

For those reasons we find three candidates for the two board seats who have demonstrated an ability and desire to work for the children of the district through their past performance.

A PRIME example of this type of involvement can be found in the performance of Thomas Yack in his one-year tenure on the board. Yack's leadership abilities and overall concern for the improvement of education for children have been shown through his near perfect attendance record for all board-related meetings including a myriad of workshops and special sessions.

Yack's leadership in intergovernmental cooperation has brought representatives of five communities within the school district together to map strategy on common problems.

While many feel that an educator cannot serve on the board in an unbiased manner, Yack has proven, through his experience as both a teacher and administrator, that those qualitites can serve as an asset on the board. At the same time Yack has voted his own convictions on all issues, offering sound reasoning and a consistent philosophy when voting.

We strongly urge the return of Yack to the board to continue his fine service to the residents of the district.

ANOTHER well qualified candidate is Joseph Gray who has served as a board member in the past. Gray's strong business background would provide an important balance on the board. The idealism and innovation of some members require an equally important tempering that Gray's business background can bring.

In his year on the board in the 1973-74 school year, Gray learned what the job of a school board member requires. Gray can step in and do what is necessary to insure that Plymouth schools will continue to serve the best interest of the community and its children.

A THIRD candidate who must be considered by voters is Flossie Tonda, who has maintained a consistent concern for the children of the district over the past five years.

In her work with parent-teacher groups and as chairman of the district's safety committee, Mrs. Tonda has learned first-hand the inner-workings of the school district.

She has learned the concerns of parents, teachers, administrators, and board members, and we feel she can step into the seat on the board and make decisions with the full understanding of their consequence.

Other candidates who have demonstrated their interest in a seat on the board require more experience necessary for meeting the needs of the students throughout the entire district, and on issues which include more than those of one school or one program.

Observer & Eccentric Newspapers

Dupree, Reichard lead field

James Dupree and Robert Reichard deserve the full support of Wayne-Westland voters in the June 9 school board election.

Their election will serve the double purpose of bringing progressive ideas into the district tempered by open-minded experience.

Dupree will make an exciting school board trustee. His sincere belief that district facilities should benefit the entire community and his support of expanding individualized education are welcomed.

Every legislative body needs members with fresh and innovative minds. Dupree offers a spirit which will aid in keeping the district vital.

Dupree believes that because the district's enrollment is declining, the open classrooms should be used to benefit pre-schoolers and senior citizens, alike. His belief goes beyond making the facilities entertainment centers.

He wants senior citizens to have real educational experiences, rather than to be given busy work. He wants the schools to be used as day care centers for families where both parents have to work. Veterans, he says, should benefit by having vocational education facilities open to them.

Dupree understands the true relationship that should exist between student and teacher. The grading system, he says, puts too much pressure on students and takes emphasis off education. Teachers and students should be learning from one another, he says.

It is hoped that Wayne-Westland residents have the courage to vote for a candidate who they know will be good for the district, even though they may feel the district isn't ready for him.

Dupree has been an outstanding addition to the community. He is active in his church as well as being a board member of the YMCA and arts council.

Reichard, on the other hand, offers 10 years of solid performance on the board. He is gutsy in the best sense. A no-nonsense trustee, he calls the shots as he seems them without regard to political consequences.

Most persons serving such a lengthy tenure on a school board become stagnant. Reichard has proved to be the exception. While understanding the needs of the school children, he also understands the rights that teachers should have accorded to them.

He has proven he can work with a variety of board trustees, administrators and school teachers. A person who has the ability to unify always is an asset, especially in these times when educators and residents find themselves at loggerheads.

While other candidates seem to have the credentials to sit on the board, residents should remember that it takes more to be a trustee than being a nice person whom everyone knows.

A second nation emerges

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

A couple of weeks ago, the Census Bureau issued an interim report on population trends in the United States. Its findings were significant clues for the kind of society that is evolving in our country.

The report indicated that the well-established trend of population loss in the big cities and gain in the suburbs was continuing. The surprise was that, for the first time in more than 50 years, populations in rural areas and small towns were growing. The Census Bureau declined to identify why this new trend was taking place, and it suggested that it was too early to say that the trend would continue.

This newspaper some years ago discovered the same trend in the Detroit area. We were puzzled at why secondary school enrollment projections in the suburbs were not being met by actual class sizes, and we made an effort to track where the kids were going.

We found they were winding up in schools in such places as Howell and Pinckney and Milford—small, partially rural towns, outside the suburban belt.

PART OF the explanation for this shift was obvious: At the time we did our research, cross-district school busing was the ultra-heavy issue in the suburbs. Some families were even sending their kids to live with relatives in those school districts.

Other families, taking advantage of improved expressways, were simply moving from the suburbs to the countryside, where they were buying lots of several acres, sending their kids to smaller school districts, and enduring the longer commute to work.

The trend to the countryside is not a large one. But you get an insight into an increasingly important issue in our society.

WE ARE on the margin of becoming two nations: The big clumps of people in a few vast metropolitan areas; and the smaller groupings of people in countless small towns. The big nation and the small nation.

The latter nation, of course, is consonent with America's history as an essentially rural, small town, agrarian country. The former nation is a function of the vast population growth of the past 50 years, coupled with the economics of industrialization which require high concentrations of people in big cities.

The political fantasy of the small nation—an old one and perhaps superceded by the times, but still very powerful—is that of the small town meeting, in which individuals representing no interest group other than their own common sense discuss issues and reach conclusions.

The reality of the big nation is that if individuals are to have any power at all in the political sense, they will gain it by being members of an organized interest group: the labor unions, the farm lobby, the ethnic groups, and so forth.

Why? The focus of where decisions that count are really made has shifted to Washington. Our senators and representatives in Congress now serve such large constituencies that the political forces they must reckon with can only be clumped by large interest groups.

I suspect this is one reason people are gradually choosing to move to areas where they can have some sort of direct say in the kind of government they will have.

If the trend to the countryside continues—and I have a hunch it will—it could be as significant as the 30-year trend to the suburbs has been. For it could lead to a great schism in our country between the two nations, each struggling to survive, neither understanding the other.

'Yes' on W-W bond issue insures quality education

Wayne-Westland School District voters will determine the future of their schools in the June 9 election. A yes vote on the $28 million bond issue will insure a quality education for students.

A district can have the finest teachers available, but without proper physical facilities, education will be hampered. Money from the bonding program will upgrade education at all levels . Its planned uses will make Wayne-Westland a district ready for the 21st century.

Residents can feel confident in approving the bonding. The money will be spent wisely. Resident committees were established by the board to study the district's needs. Passage of the bond issue will bring to fruition a true community effort.

While dealing with the more practical problems such as roofing, committees members also left room for new and exciting ideas such as curriculum resource centers and senior citizens' facilities.

The best part of the bonding is the relatively low price tag to taxpayers. On the average, it will cost an additional $9.10 a year for each taxpayer.

The one issue on which every school board candidates agreed is that the bond issue should be approved.

The district's teachers and administrators have served the school well. They deserve voter support by being provided with improved facilities.

How folks see school issues

Bond issue supported

Editor:

I urge all residents of Wayne-Westland School District to vote yes on the June 9 bond issue. Passing this bond issue will keep our present buildings from deteriorating, provide additional facilities for vocational education (a great need), place swimming pools at all junior highs (also for community use) and expand our special education facilities. We will be able to provide all this and many more improvements for just two to three cents a day for the average homeowner.

CAROL DIAZ, Westland

Editor:

I would like to appeal to all Wayne-Westland voters to vote yes on the bond issue on June 9. I think all the additions and improvements are necessary for our children's safety and well-being. We should think especially of our special education improvements. These children need all the help they can get to prepare them for the future.

CAROL ZAREMBA, Westland

Cowden backed

Editor:

Trustee Ronald Cowden has displayed the necessary determination to meet the challenge of human problems and the changing educational needs of the students of Schoolcraft Community College. I have worked with Cowden long enough to know that of the candidates offered for your consideration, he is outstanding. I will be voting for the re-election of Cowden June 9. I hope you will also.

JOHN F. MARKES,
State Representative,
36th District

2 incumbents are backed

Editor:

We feel the Clarenceville school board has been run very well and hope it remains on its present course until the family we hope to have has been able to utilize it. We therefore are supporting the re-election of the two incumbent members, Thomas Wilson, with 19 years on the board, and Dr. Sam Prisk, who has served 16 years. As long as the stream is flowing in the right direction, we see no need to change course.

MICHAEL & SUSAN LEGG,
Livonia

Editor:

During my tenure as state representative, I have had an opportunity to know and work with Tom Wilson and Dr. Sam Prisk on the Clarenceville Board of Education. I believe the residents of Clarenceville are very fortunate that Wilson and Dr. Prisk have agreed to run for another term, and I am happy to endorse their candidacies.

R. ROBERT GEAKE,

Accountability and millage

Editor:

The Livonia Board of Education has been concerned with that very visible word—accountability—and its very emotional responses and reactions.

Livonia's teachers do not reject the concept of accountability; indeed, they have been working hard to make it a reality, particularly at the elementary level. Examples that will be tested next school year are elementary music and art. The staffs have met many times in the last several years to create Livonia models for accountability.

However, the progress of education in Livonia, next year and at least two years beyond, will depend on millage decisions. These subject areas are perennially vulnerable.

But too many parents and voters would be surprised to know elementary art and music programs are, and have been, handicapped by a lack of funding. As an elementary art teacher in Livonia for 22 years, I spend two days in one school and three in another. My schedule averages out to two hours a month of art instruction.

Letters must be original copies and contain the signature and address of the sender.

Limit letters to 300 words.

Many school systems do a lot better than that.

If the millage is approved, I might keep two schools, but I may have a third, because even with approval, art, music and physical education staffs will be cut. If the millage fails, further cuts will be made, and perhaps I'll instruct your child for one hour a month.

Schools should get millage

Editor:

I have been reading with great interest the letters from Livonia School District residents concerning the millage renewal election June 9. I for one am in favor of its passage, and I beseech other parents to get out and vote yes.

The funds are needed to maintain the high quality of education which our children are receiving. Parents can give their children no more lasting a gift in life than a high quality education.

I would like to thank the teachers of my four children presently attending Cooper Elementary School. All four have performed "above and beyond the call of duty." My children have gone off to school gladly and never wish to miss a day.

Taxes to rise in Plymouth

Editor:

I am disturbed by an editorial, "It's a bargain you can't refuse" (Plymouth, June 2). I agree completely with your right to support editorially any matter you wish, but I feel you should properly present the facts. This you have not done.

In paragraph 2, you said: "...without raising their tax bills." In paragraph 4: "...and still find taxes being lowered." In paragraph 8: "...and still save money."

Nowhere did you say that since the state equalized valuation has been increased, all tax bills would go up. As far as I know, the equalization factor in 1975 is six per cent, which means that all tax bills go up by six per cent in the City of Plymouth this year, assuming the rate does not change.

That seems to mean that a man who paid $700 in school taxes in December 1974 will day $742 in December 1975 unless the rate is reduced drastically.

LEA demands its price

Editor:

An Observer & Eccentric editor wonders why more people don't vote in school board elections. Is it disgust?

The Livonia Education Association has backed six of the present board members. Martin Seitz, the seventh board member, is the only one who made it without their support.

Three years ago an attempt was made to get voting control of the board. The LEA left no stone unturned to defeat the challenging candidates—with the Observer & Eccentric's help.

LEA-backed candidates have a price to pay—cooperation at contract time. It doesn't matter if essential programs are dropped and other people are suffering from unemployment—the teachers must have their raises!

There is a millage renewal on the ballot June 9, and Martin Seitz is running again. He won't get LEA support. Will he make it?

RACHEL SMITH,

Bond issue a good deal

Editor:

No, I do not want more taxes, not any more than you do. I didn't want to buy a new refrigerator either, but things get old, worn out or damaged, and so we must repalce them.

Depsite the fact I do not want more taxes, I'm going to support the June 9 bond issue in Wayne-Westland School District.

Why? How many of you have gone out and bought something that you were going to wait awhile longer to buy, but because you found out costs were going up, you decided to stretch your budget and buy it right away?

We did it because it saved us money in the long run, we needed it, it made good sense, and we'd only have ended up buying it later at a much higher price.

Most of us who are homeowners know what it's like after the house is about 10 years old. There are many repairs and replacements needed. It shouldn't come as much of a surprise that our schools must need and have the same upkeep and repairs.

I'm not going to insult your intelligence by telling you that our schools will fall apart on June 10 if the bond issue is not passed. But they will need the money sooner or later. If we wait, it will cost us much more for the same things that need attention right now.

Pioneers advance to regional

RU, East fall in Dearborn district

By JIM BRADLEY

Dearborn's Pioneers, a club with a so-so record, assumed the role of Cinderella by beating Garden City East and Detroit Cody by identical 2-1 scores Monday to win district honors in the state baseball tournament.

Redford Union, also attempting to play the role of Cinderella, found the glass slipper didn't fit when Cody turned the Panthers' "dream" into a nightmarish 8-6 semifinal loss.

Dearborn then found the slipper fit perfectly when it scored in the ninth inning of the final game as pitcher Jim Zimmerman, who had fired a two-hitter, drove in the deciding run with a fly to left. The Pioneers advance to the Southfield Regional where the only area Class A team, Plymouth Salem, is still alive.

EAST SUFFERED a disappointing defeat in the semifinal round as Tod Kleinbrook lost a two-hitter, both runs scoring on two-out errors.

Kleinbrook, who fired a two-hitter against Plymouth Canton in the Les Anders title game and lost 4-2, pitched another strong game. The slender fireballer, with a buggy whip for a right arm, permitted just two hits by Dearborn, both in the seventh inning when the Pioneers scored the winning run on an error with two out.

East had jumped to an early 1-0 lead in the first inning when winning pitcher Jim Vanderhull walked Jim Peter and Kleinbrook to open the game. Wally Krol then beat out a sacrifice bunt to load the bases.

Vanderhull, who gave up just five hits mainly infield bouncers, induced Jeff Edgar to force Peter at the plate on a grounder. Joe Becszlko then dropped down a perfect suicide squeeze bunt to score Kleinbrook. But a potential big inning went down the drain as Britt Pontegrounded to short to end the frame.

The Panthers of East didn't come close to scoring again as the big, strong Vanderhull got better as the game progressed and allowed only two East baserunners after the second inning. He walked only one more after the first and struck out four, including the final out of the game.

HOWEVER, Kleinbrook was sailing along with fine control, fanning six and walking only two in carrying a 1-0 lead into the top of the fifth. Dearborn then scored without the benefit of a hit. With one out, Dennis Sauter walked and was sacrificed to second.

A routine bouncer to the second baseman got away and Sauter raced around third to score on the error.

After a scoreless sixth, Dearborn came to bat with the score knotted at 1-all. Dale Wimmer, big Pioneer first-sacker, slapped an opposite field double over Peter's head in right with one out for Dearborn's first hit. Eric Tarpinian then sent a screaming liner back at the mound. It was slowed by Kleinbrook's glove and infielder Edgar quickly picked it up to hold Wimmer at third.

Kleinbrook bore down and fanned the next batter for the second out and things brightened considerably for East. But then Mike Kozlowski chopped a slow bouncer to the first base side of the mound and when Kleinbrook couldn't make the play, Wimmer sped home with the winning tally.

EAST COACH Billy Joe Young was filled with praise for his Panthers who finished with a 19-5 season record and won the Northwest Suburban League title with a 12-3 mark, the last 10 victories in a row.

"Tod pitched a truly great ball game," said Young. "Baseball is a team game and it takes the entire ball club to win or lose. Unfortunately, we couldn't do much with Vanderhull. He's also a fine pitcher," Young added.

Hustling Lou Willoughby, East's third-sacker, suffered a 22-stitch cut when he was thrown out trying to steal second in the game, and and was taken to the hospital.

Batteries: Dearborn - VANDERHULL and Mason; EAST - KLEINBROOK, Hudson (7) and Ponte.

Bob Atkins' Panthers of Redford Union fell behind Detroit Cody 7-0 in Monday's semifinal district baseball challenge before rallying for six runs in dropping an 8-6 decision.

Fielding lapses permitted the Detroit team to score one in the first, two in the second and four in the fourth before the Panthers came to life with a bang.

Trailing 7-0, Atkins' crew got a lot of mileage on two hits in the fifth, coming up with five runs in just about every possible way.

Stocky Ken Mayeran, Cody's tough left-hander, held Redford Union scoreless through the first four innings and was replaced by Jim Gonzales, Detroit's coach hoping also to pitch Mayeran against Dearborn in the district finals later in the day. However, Gonzales walked Gregg Wood and Dan Bushart to open the inning and Joe Rucinski scored Wood with a single to right. Panther catcher Bruce Stadler bounced out, scoring Bushart and sending Rucinski to third and he scored on a dropped fly ball hit by Gary Stafford after Bob Miller walked.

Mayeran was brought back to the mound with one out and two on. Ted Ackerman, who's been rapping the cover off the ball lately, greeted Mayeran with a solid single to center, scoring Miller and sending Stafford to third. Stafford then scored on a passed ball and it was a 7-5 ball game. However, Mayeran showed poise by fanning Tom Jones and getting big George Willard to bounce out to end the frame.

After Cody upped its lead to 8-5 with a tally in the bottom of the sixth, the Panthers closed out the scoring with one in their last turn at bat.

Stadler opened with a single and was forced at second on pinch hitter Craig Hill's bouncer to third. Hill gained second on a wild pitch and scored when Ackerman's slow roller was misplayed.

Bushart, who had entered the game with an unblemished 5-0 mound mark, was the victim of listless defense as well as being roughed up by a hard-hitting Cody attack which pounded out 12 hits off Bushart and his reliever Howard Copeland.

"I think our boys did a creditable job this year," Atkins said in the aftermath of defeat. "We did well to come this far and the boys can be proud of that. However, we're not a physically strong team and not as sound defensively as we should be."

EAST'S JEFF EDGAR puts the tag on Dearborn's Jim Zimmerman as Panther shortstop Wally Krol looks on. The Panthers were letter perfect on this play but two miscues led to their demise in Monday's district action.

Salem, St. Agatha continue tournament runs Saturday

By TOM SCHRAM
Sports Editor

Plymouth Salem in Class A and Redford St. Agatha in Class C, the two area teams to survive district play in the Michigan High School Athletic Association's state baseball tournament, will go into Saturday's regional competition playing distinctively different roles.

Salem, which plays in the Southfield High School district with Dearborn, Melvindale and Adrian, will be rated a co-favorite along with Melvindale to emerge to the June 14 finals.

St. Agatha, which will play at Blissfield High School, will try to continue the role of of a Cinderella team after upsetting Hamtramck St. Florian and Hamtramck in last Saturday's district.

THE BIG MAN at Plymouth Salem is senior righthander Tom Willette. One of the best hurlers in the state, Willette handcuffed top rated Plymouth Canton in last Saturday's district finals to advance the Rocks.

The problem that faces Salem Coach Wayne Sparkman is his second choice for mound duties. Last Saturday Sparkman held Willette out of the opening game and the Rock batsmen came through with a big offensive thrust as Salem eliminated Livonia Stevenson 12-6.

Sparkman indicated that Chuck Thomas would probably get the call along with Willette Saturday, but final game assignments had not been made as of Tuesday.

MHSAA rules prohibit a pitcher from going more than 10 innings in one day so it is possible that Willette will work in both games.

Salem will face Adrian in the regional semifinal. Adrian sports a deceptive 8-14 record but has caught fire of late and is a traditional baseball power. Adrian has a pair of tough southpaw pitchers and cannot be taken lightly.

IN THE OPENING game of the tournament, powerful Melvindale will go against surprising Dearborn which finished in the depths of the Suburban Eight conference with a 6-8 record but shocked Garden City East and Detroit Cody to advance last Saturday.

St. Agatha's problem is quite a bit different from Salem's.

The Aggies, who will open regional competition against Riverside Gabriel Richard at Blissfield High School located near Adrian, are blessed with a trio of fine pitchers.

PAT RUVOLA, Greg Sipus and Ron Jess all have no-hitters to their credit in their prep careers, and Ruvolo and Jess held the opposition to five hits in two games last Saturday as the Aggies took a pair of one-run victories.

But St. Agatha has had problems with the bat all year long, and its fielding has been shaky at times.

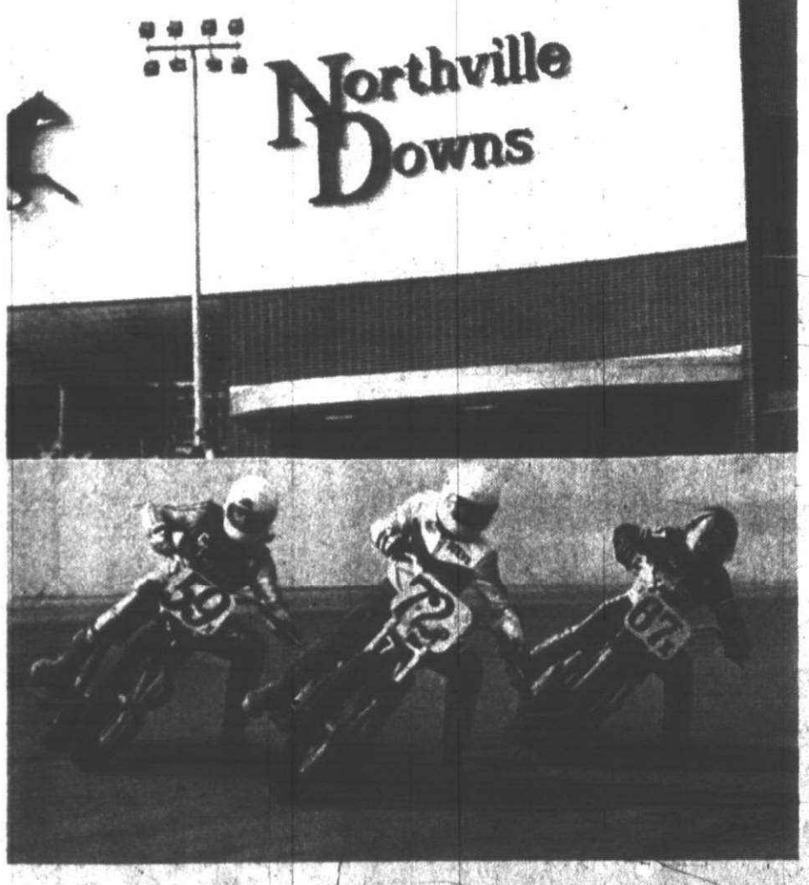
Aggy coach Dan Sweeney indicated that Ruvolo would get the nod to start against Gabriel Richard, but Sweeney had not decided on a second starter if the Aggies defeat a fine Richard team which boasts a 19-10 record.

The other semifinal game pits Almont (18-4) against Blissfield (22-3). At 10-8 St. Agatha has the worst record of the four, and the Aggies figure to be sidelined unless some offensive spark is generated by what has been a dormant hitting attack.

TOURNAMENT REGIONAL SCHEDULE

At Southfield High School — Dearborn versus Melvindale, 10:00 a.m. Salem versus Adrian, 12:30 p.m. (Finals at 3:30 p.m.)

At Blissfield High School — St. Agatha versus Gabriel Richard, 10 30 a.m.; Almont versus Blissfield, 1 p.m. (Finals at 3:30 p.m.)



TOP MICHIGAN AND NATIONAL stars will compete at the American Motorcycle Association's professional motorcycle races tonight at Northville Downs. The 16 race program will begin at 7 p.m. with time trials and doors opening at 4 p.m.

Top DRC stars brave 'Frontier'

Ace Commander, Kilfoil and Play Fashion, the stars of the 1974 Frontier Handicap, are all returning for Saturday's renewal of the $50,000 Michigan-bred headliner at Detroit Race Course.

Racing secretary Tom Dorsey announced a list of 14 nominations Wednesday from the mile and one sixteenth event and said that he had given top weight of 123 pounds to Ace Commander, back to defend the Frontier crown he so narrowly won last year.

The Frontier Handicap, for state-bred 3-year-olds and up, is the first of a series of rich stake races which DRC will present during the last five weeks of its thoroughbred season. The $100,000 Michigan Mile and One Eighth, carded for Saturday, June 21, heads a slate which totals about $285,000 in purse offerings.

"The return of the three horses which made last year's Frontier such a thriller guarantees us another great race," Dorsey said. "Add such other entries as Kid Slipper, Val's Brat and Jeffrey's Gyro and you can see we've got the best horses in Michigan coming in."

In the 1974 Frontier, raced for $39,450, Ace Commander, a 6-year-old son of Thermo, is owned by Mrs. Margaret David of South Lyon.

HIGH WEIGHTING ACE COMMANDER for this year's Frontier was a routine matter for Dorsey. A horse who thrives on hard work and constant racing, Ace Commander has already won two features at DRC this spring, including the $15,000 Derby Salute Handicap. He is ridden by Hawaiian jockey Larry Kunitake and has already been nominated for the Michigan Mile.

Although now owned by Ohioan Leonard Polichena, the 7-year-old Kilfoil was bred by Michigan's Susan B. Fisher and was the winner of the 1973 Frontier. Play Fashion, an 8-year-old gelding who has finished third in the last two Frontiers, was bred and is owned by Lester Seafert of Washington, Mich.

Carrying second top weight of 119 Saturday will be Kid Slipper, a speedy 4-year-old colt bred and owned by well known Michigan restaurant owner Gordon Knapp. Other nominees to the Frontier include Alibupe, Wild Winnie, Dink Welden, Nick O' Bob, Cooner, Sweet Copy, Shelaka and My Favorite Gal.

While DRC officials were putting Saturday's Frontier racing card together, the list of nominations for the Michigan Mile was growing daily.

Spartan girls take Inter-Lakes meet

Livonia Stevenson made a "Spartan effort" in several events last week and literally ran away with the third Inter-Lakes League girls track meet.

The event, which had been an annual affair until its cancellation last year, has always been won by Stevenson.

This year, it was no contest.

Stevenson took firsts in eight of 13 events to win going away with 83 points compared to Walled Lake Central's 52 in the runner-up spot. Other team finishes were Waterford (26) and Milford (18).

Other Inter-Lakes teams do not participate in girls track.

The Spartans won all three relays to highlight action. The 880 yard relay (Linda Adams, Sharon Solak, Jan Wilkenson and Lois Lefevre) was won in 1:49.7. The 440 yard relay (Adams, Solak, Wilkenson and Carol Freivogel) was clocked in 52.2. And the mile relay (Lori Hyman, Kathy Dubois, Carolyn Booth and Lefevre) went in 4:21.4.

Other Spartan firsts included the high jump (Booth, 5-1), the 880 yard run (Kelly Boyle, 2:35.2), the hurdles (Solak, 16.1), the 100 yard dash (Freivogel, 11.8) and the 440 yard run (Lefevre, 1:01.4).

Stevenson also took seconds in the high jump (Hyman), the 880 (Dubois), the 2 mile run (Liz Hatfield) and the 220 (Ellen Terrill).

The league victory capped a season in which Stevenson finished with a 9-4 dual meet record.

CC to host roundball camp

Detroit Catholic Central will bring together top high school and college players to present its third annual basketball camp for boys ages 10 to 16 on July 7 through July 18.

For the first time this year, a girls basketball camp will also be offered from July 21 through July 25.

Registration for both camps, which will be run by Catholic Central head basketball coach Bernie Holowicki, can be made by contacting him at the school. Registration for both weeks of the boys camp is $45. Registration for the girls camp or one week of the boys camp is $25.

Tom Lagarde, Joe Charnley, Tom Zaligaris and Bob Santello will be among the athletes on Holowicki's staff and Fred Thomann, head coach at Plymouth Salem High School, will be among the featured speakers at the camp.

BOH June horse shows to present top competition

By FRED DeLANO

The most extravagant equine competitive presentation Michigan has ever known will turn the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club into a national mecca for horse show lovers the last three weeks of June.

Not only has BOH expanded its own 40th annual Detroit Horse Show into two separate segments, but it also has rescued the now defunct 63-year-old Grosse Pointe Hunt Club show and has given it a new name as well as new home.

As a result, BOH will offer these back-to-back attractions for total prize money of $65,000—the richest horse show purse in the state's history:

Friday throuhg Sunday, June 13-15, the dressage division of the Detroit Horse Show.

Wednesday through Sunday, June 18-22, the Motor City Horse Show (formerly Grosse Pointe's dates).

Tuesday through Sunday, June 24-29, the hunter-jumper division of the Detroit Horse Show.

No Michigan club ever has tackled such a mamoth equestrian promotional event before, and none has ever had as big a response from owners and breeders throughout the nation. Upwards of 500 of the finest mounts in the land are expected to be stabled on the rolling BOH acreage for each of the three phases.

In all, there will be 14 days of competition on the Bloomfield heath as riders strive to capture some of the most prized trophies in the equestrian world.

Already considered one of the premier attractions of its kind in the United States, BOH's new package takes on even added luster with $40,000 in prizes at stake for the Detroit Horse Show segments plus $25,000 for the Motor City show.

The generous handicap systems used in most bowling tournaments are now coming under fire, especially among the women. They claim the generosity once used to attract the low average bowler now is starting to keep the better performers from entering, and the major tournaments may suffer as a result.

A case in point is the women's state tournament now being held at Lansing, where the Manchester Plastics team of Clinton was given a 945 pin 'spot' and wound up in second place, only 10 pins behind the Town Carpet team of Warren that boasts an average better than 850 and fired an actual 2,785 in the tournament.

The all-stars among the women are claiming that these generous handicaps are giving the game a false image and, in the end, may be harmful.

"It's rather disturbing, " Ann Setlock, one of the all-stars,remarked, "when you go to a tournament and see a team with a 945 'spot.' That's a complete game. So you actually would be giving away the first game. "

For years, the handicap system called for 70 per cent from 200 for the men and 80 per cent from 200 for the women. Recently, the tournaments are giving 100 per cent. As a result, most of the record books will have to be rewritten.

It will be interesting to see how far the women will carry their complaint.

KAY BURTON, who carries a 149 average, got away to a great start in the all-star doubles at Garden Lanes Thursday night. She fired a 570 series and beat Ann Setlock, the Garden day manager, by five pins.

THE HEAT WAVE hasn't bothered Charlie Staggs in the Wednesday mixed league at Westland Bowl. He put together games of 245, 204 and 221 for a 670.

Another who wasn't bothered was Ruth Worley in the Winter Windup, who shot a 246 in 605. Meanwhile, Dee Engle paced the Singles Classic with a 536.

MARGE KOPACEK, who bowled in four leagues each week during the regular season to get relief for an aching back, now has solved another problem. Eager to bowl in four leagues during the summer, she could find places in only three. That didn't stop her. She has now decided that she and her husband will take one day each and bowl in a different establishment in the area—so she'll get the relief she's after.

THREE BOLWERS well known in the suburban areas—Chuck Sunseri, Ray Williams and Dolly Auch—are in the field of candidates for U.S . team that will bowl for the world championship at London, England, in the Fall.

Sunseri and Williams, who bowl in the Westland Bowl Classic, earned a place in the trials by their showing in the ABC tournament a year ago. And Dolly Auch earned her place by finishing second in the all-events of the recent WIBC at Indianapolis.

Dolly will be the fourth Detroit area woman to compete in the international event. The first was Helen Shablis, former instructor at Merri-Bowl, who won the all events. Next came Helen Weston who made a great showing in Finland and last year Mary Mohacsi, the Livonia school teacher, placed second in Carcas, South America.

The U.S. trials are being held at the Red Carpet Lanes in Milwaukee.

ERV WATSON, who has been bowling at Bel-Aire Lanes ever since the establishment opened, is the top scorer in the men's trio for the summer season. He put to get her games of 179, 211 and 207 for 597 to beat D.T. Scripture by five pins.

THE GIRLS are having a great time of it at Westland Bowl in the summer leagues.

Pam Martin topped the list in the Early Birds with 195 in 569 and Tammy Lakatos had a high game of 199.

Killer bee tales are debunked

Stories about African "killerbees" have been proven untrue by Cornell University expert, Dr. Andrew Morse.

"One news source was quoted as saying the bees have killed more than 300 persons annually along with thousands of animals since 1957. This is sheer bunk," said Morse, speaking to a group of entomologists at Michigan State University.

Rumor that the bees were moving toward Mexico and the U.S. at the rate of 200 miles per year also was false said Morse.

"The rate of movement is totally inconsistent with the facts we know. If they moved at that rate, they'd be swarming 10 to 20 times a year. Considering 30 to 70 per cent of the bees leave a colony during a swarm, you'd soon run out of bees. It just doesn't jibe," he says.

"They might be spreading, but it's because the South American beekeepers find out about their productive capacity. The bees are not spreading because of they are wild killers of men and animals."

The bees produce one-third to half again as much honey annually than the European-type honey bees used in the United States.

It's not likely the Africanized Brazilian bee will ever enter the U.S. "This African bee is a tropical insect," said Morse.

Basic care cuts rotary power mower accidents

It's that time of year when lawn care becomes practically a weekend occupation.

Mowing the lawn can be good exercise and enjoyable, but take care when using rotary lawn mowers, R.G. Pfister, Michigan State University Extension safety engineer, says. He annually receives numerous reports of lawn mower accidents, most of which could be prevented by basic safety practices.

"Familiarize yourself with the machine by reading the owner's manual. This can prevent accidents and also prolong the life of the machine," Pfister advises.

Fuel the machine before starting, not while the engine is running. Stop the engine whenever you leave the mower. Be extra careful when cutting wet grass and sloped areas. Never use electric lawn mowers on wet grass.

THE TWO MOST common mower accidents are thrown objects and body contact with cutting blades. "If young children are going to use the mower, they must be old enough to operate the machine properly and be taught good operating practices," Pfister says.

To prevent feet from getting caught under the mower when starting, place one foot on the housing and the other foot on the ground at the side of the mower. Push the mower whenever possible and pull for positioning only. Pulling the lawn mower can be dangerous and it also cuts the grass improperly.

Inspect the lawn thoroughly for objects that might be thrown by the cutting blades. "The most common hazardous objects found in lawns are clothes pinss, stones, sticks and wires. Shut the engine off when going across sidewalks or other gravel areas because small stones can cause injury and break windows," Pfister warns.

The Stroller

The grad's plight

By W. W. EDGAR

Within the next few weeks an army of graduates, diplomas in hand, will be leaving the college and university campuses of the land to face what surely must be an unexpected challenge.

Little did many of them think when they entered the institutions of higher learning that they would be leaving in the midst of a recession and a sagging economy with the unemployment rate at one of its highest levels.

Where to turn and what to do?

That's the challenge they face and it will be interesting to watch how they meet it. For instance, what will a graduate teacher do now that the various school districts are reducing their staffs because of declining enrollments?

And what about the engineers–with the auto industry and the major steel plants being on short business levels?

Will there be another "Boss" Kettering or a Ted Kimber among them–fellows who tossed their diplomas aside and went out to make names for themselves?

"BOSS," AS YOU KNOW, was the inventor of the self-starter and the man most responsible for making automobile driving a pleasure.

His philosphy is one of the most interesting The Stroller ever has heard.

Having the privilege of sitting with him one afternoon at his favorite golf course, The Stroller was surprised to hear him say, rather unconcerned, that he never had had a failure.

"Do you mean to say," The Stroller asked, "that the first time you built your idea of a self-starter it worked?"

"No. I didn't say that," he answered. "It didn't work. But I don't believe a thing is a failure when you are learning something. When my first one didn't work, I learned that this was not the way to build it.

"And I learned many other ways not to build it, until I found the right way to do it. So, I can truthfully say I never had a failure."

Just about that time a young graduate engineer joined the party and immediately carried his case to the great GM research engineer.

"Mr. Kettering," he said, "what is there left for any of of us to do? We have such things as television, which was often thought unbelieveable, and we have gone to the moon!"

"BOSS" LOOKED AT HIM and very calmly asked, "Son, do you know why the grass is green. Why isn't it red or white or purple?

"If you ever can find the answer to that you'll never have to worry about making a living."

Then, The Stroller well recalls the work of Ted Kimber. His name is not as famous as that of "Boss" Kettering. But he is one of the men who made possible the present bowling game.

A native of South Africa, he came to Detroit to work in the old Dodge plant. Running into one of the slack seasons and out of work, he visited the neighborhood bowling lanes. There he learned that keeping the pins in good shape was an arduous task. The bottoms had occassion to lose their sharp edges and became easy to topple.

So what did he do?

Ted used his native intelligence and invented the fibre bottom. The pins now kept their shape, bowling became a more legitimate game and Ted became a wealthy man. And it wasn't his diploma that got him there.

He saw an opportunity and made the most if it. That's what the present graduates will have to do and their diplomas may not be of much help.

It is the graduate, either man or woman, who will have to use imagination and recognize an opportunity when it comes along in times like these.

So, graduates, Good Luck-and lots of it.

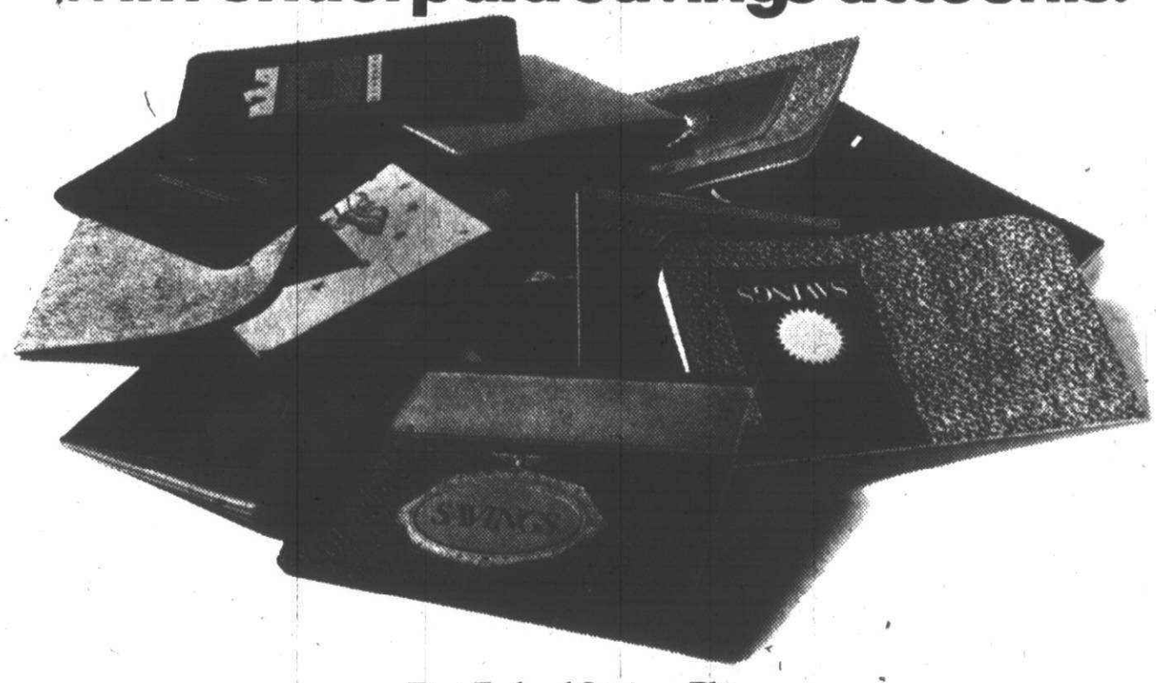
We'd like to have a serious talk with underpaid savings accounts.



First Federal Savings Plans

There's no better time than right now to take a look at how your savings are doing.

Was last year's interest the best your savings could earn? And is it going to do any better this year?

At First Federal Savings of Detroit, you have a wide choice of savings plans and interest rates. From our 5¼% per year regular passbook savings account all the way on up to our new 7¾% per year Certificate Savings Account—the highest allowed by law on insured savings.

Type of Account	Minimum Amount	Annual Rate	Effective Annual Rate	How And When Paid
Regular Passbook	No Minimum	5¼%	5.35%	Daily interest, paid and compounded quarterly
One-Year Passbook Certificate	$1,000	6½%	6.66%	Paid and compounded quarterly
2½-Year Passbook Certificate	$1,000	6¾%	6.92%
4-Year Passbook Certificate	$1,000	7½%	7.71%
6-Year Passbook Certificate	$1,000	7¾%	7.98%

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from certificate savings accounts.

And your savings at First Federal are insured to $40,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, an agency of the U.S. Government.

So take a look at the chart here and think about your present savings account. If it doesn't measure up, bring it to us and let's talk about a year of greater interest for you.

We can do more for you if you'll think First.

Water system abandoned in 1971

(Part III)

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT
by
Sam Hudson

In 1963, Plymouth industrial leaders from plants located in the city and township met with Mayor Robert Sincock to discuss their water problems. During the discussion, they asked why the city and the township could not get together to form a water authority.

The subject was talked about for some time, but nothing came of it. For one thing, relations between the city and the township were not conducive to a joint effort. For another, the city was on the verge of getting a grant from the federal government to aid construction of the proposed new three million gallon reservoir and new water transmission system.

The matching funds, a $300,000 accelerated public works grant, were approved in 1964, and the new reservoir was built on Beck Road, between Five and Six Mile, in 1965 — just six years before the city abandoned its own water system and began to buy water from Detroit.

IN 1968, a water crisis developed when the level of the water table dropped. First, the Beck Road installation had to be closed because there was no water. Then the motor burned out on the main pump at the Six Mile Road facility, which always had limited equipment. An auxiliary motor was placed in service, and for a time, the city considered rationing water.

The decision to go to Detroit for water was made in 1971. Among the factors which brought this on were citizen complaints about rust in the local water and its relative hardness. Ken Vogras, director of public works for the city, told me that Plymouth water tested at 23 grains per gallon of hardness, compared to seven grains for Detroit water.

A REFERENDUM, held in 1971, let voters decide whether to put money into an iron removal plant, or to convert to Detroit water. Vogras says the cost of installing an iron removal plant and the cost of installing Detroit water were about equal. Those who favored Detroit water won by the narrow margin of 12 votes.

Those who voted for connecting with the Detroit Water System may have been influenced by the hardness of the water, by the near-rationing of 1968, by the repeated bond issues to finance improvements, or by a feeling that there was an advantage in being part of a larger system.

They also had before them the examples of other suburban communities that had connected to Detroit because of a preference for the softer water.

Pontiac connected because its large industrial users strongly favored conversion to the Detroit system, even though Pontiac had to pay 2½ times as much for water as it did with its former wells. Bloomfield Hills had no trouble with declining water levels, but connected to Detroit because of a preference for the softer water.

MANY VOTERS may also have heard about Prof. Borchardt's declaration that Plymouth had no choice but eventually to accept Detroit water. In his mind, it was only a question of when that time would arrive. In his 1964 report, Borchardt gave these reasons for his viewpoint:

1. "Plymouth's supply comes from an aquifier which is shallow and unprotected. Eventually contamination from surface or sub-surface pollution may make it unsafe.
2. "Population growth and watershed development may change the recharge characteristics such that the flow decreases to an unsafe level.
3. "As the draft of well water becomes greater and the drawdown increases, the water quality will decrease.
4. "Modern homeowners have a desire for softer water.
5. "Maintenance and operation problems may be expected to mount slowly."

The agreement with Detroit said that the Board of Water Commissioners was to charge "just and equitable water rates," that the rates were to bear a reasonable relationship to costs, that the books of the water department would be open for examination by the county, and that at the request of any unit within the system, the Supervisors Committee was to hold hearings as to the reasonable amounts of the rates.

It also stipulated that any unit could apply to Wayne County Circuit Court for a determination as to the reasonableness of any water rate.

IN HIS REPORT, Prof. J. A. Borchardt had said, "If the (Detroit Water System) grows larger and the costs of supply fall as a result, the user may benefit. Being realistic, the chance of a dramatic decline in rates is probably impossible." He apparently did not envision the possibility of a dramatic INCREASE in rates as is now being discussed.

Taking into consideration the bullish Johnson and Anderson report, the bearish Borchardt report, the problems Plymouth had when it owned its own water system, and the recent attempts by the Detroit Board of Water Commissioners to increase substantially the rates it charged for water, it is apparent that the question of whether Plymouth should have given up its own system in 1971 is a complex one, with no simple answers.

TWO YEARS AFTER the City of Plymouth hooked up to Detroit water, it sold the property which contained the old concrete reservoir near Six Mile and Sheldon. It was purchased by the owner of the Par-3 Brooklane Golf Course, whose property it adjoins.

The city still owns the well property, consisting of 38 acres on Beck Road and 10 acres on Six Mile Road. Vogras tells me there had been some talk of using the property as a nature study area.

I extend my thanks to Ken Vogras, Plymouth's director of public works since 1966, for providing me with some information used in this series. I also consulted Prof. J. A. Borchardt's "Review of Existing Reports on Water Supply for Plymouth and Plymouth Township," written in 1964, and a paper, "Plymouth Doubles Water Production," written in 1956 by Stanford L. Besse, who was then the city's supervisor of planning and engineering.

Wedded bliss: Folklore is a sure way to the altar

June is traditionally the month of weddings. The superstitions that exist surrounding the marriage ceremony would fill several books. I've chosen only the happy ones, and a limited number of those, to fill this short column.

When a visitor enters by one door and leaves by another, someone in that household is soon to be wed.

Marry in the month of June, life will be a honeymoon.

One of the most popular days for a wedding in Scotland is December 31. The whole world celebrates with you, and your husband can never forget your anniversary. Every New Year's Day you begin a new year together.

Happy the bride the sun shines on.

Snow falling on the bridal couple is also a good omen. They will get a dollar for every snowflake that falls on them.

The wedding day is the bride's day, and the day after the wedding is the groom's day. In some parts of the country this is called "infare" or "in-fair" day, and a party is held for the couple by the groom's parents.

In England it was, and still may be, considered lucky to see a flock of birds, a wolf or a toad on your wedding day.

It is a sign of very good luck for a bride to find a spider crawling on her wedding dress.

It is good luck for a bride to carry bread in her pocket, for when she throws it away, she throws away her troubles.

A piece of althea root tucked in the bridal bouquet insures a happy honeymoon and a life of wedded bliss.

A bride should have her veil put on by a happily married woman.

If a bride wears her grandmother's gown or veil, she will always have money.

A bit of salt carried in her glove will protect the bride from the evil eye.

A bridegroom should carry a horseshoe in his pocket for luck (I'm sure a miniature one will do).

Orange blossoms are the best of all possible flowers to carry for good luck.

A bit of wheat added to the bridal bouquet will insure fertility. Rice is thrown at the couple for the same reason.

The ring is a circle without an end, the symbol of eternity, and stands for everlasting love.

At the altar, the bride should make sure she stands with her right foot placed ahead of the groom's to insure her future influence over him.

When the hands are joined during the wedding ceremony, the one whose thumb is on top will be the head of the household.

The groom's mother should break a cake or a loaf of bread over the bride's head on her wedding day to establish good relations and make them both happy.

When she takes off her wedding clothes, the bride should throw her stockings over her left shoulder for good luck.

A bride must throw away all the pins from her bridal clothes. If she wants a good marriage, she should not keep one pin that was used on her wedding day.

If the husband goes to bed before his wife on their wedding night, he will outlive her, and vice versa.

The bridal couple should always sleep with their heads to the north on their wedding night.

Spread a pound of Limburger cheese between two towels to make a poultoce. Place it under the pillow of the newlyweds, and good fortune and many children will be theirs.

If your husband leaves the house in an angry mood, go at once to your neighbor's house and eat some applesauce. When he comes home, all will be forgotten.

The fur of a cat blowing the wrong way means that the groom still looks favorably at other women. This may be counteracted by greasing the cat's fur.

Sleep with a piece of wedding cake under your pillow, and you will dream of your future mate.

If a young bachelor eats wedding cake fed to him by an older married woman, he will marry within the year.

When I was growing up in northern Michigan, it was always the custom to "shivaree" a newly married couple. In the middle of the night, everyone would go to the place where the bridal pair were sleeping and make loud noise by banging tin pans together, beating kettles with spoons, ringing cow bells, blowing horns, and whooping and yelling until the bride and groom appeared at the window and threw them candy, tobacco or coins. Nobody I've met here in the suburbs seems to know about this custom, and it's no longer practiced even in my old home town.

McQuesten gets backing

Mark A. McQuesten of Livonia, candidate for Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees, has gained endorsements from college and local school district trustees .

Other endorsements gained include the teachers' unions at Schoolcraft and in Livonia, Plymouth and Northville. He is one of six candidates seeking election to two seats June 9.

Voting to fill the four-year positions will be residents of the Livonia, Plymouth, Garden City, Clarenceville and Northville school districts.

McQuesten has been endorsed by retiring Schoolcraft Board Chairman John LaRue, Vice-Chairman Paul Kadish, Treasurer Nancie Blatt and Trustee Rosina Raymond. In a joint statement, the trustees said McQuesten's experience and insight to the problems at Schoolcraft will be beneficial to the board and community.

Livonia School Board endorsements came from Mark Scarr, board chairman, and Connie Hierta, trustee.

McQuesten was rated "preferred and well qualified" by the Schoolcraft Faculty Forum, Livonia Education Association, Plymouth Education Association, and Northville Education Association.

Musicians join SC summer faculty

Cellist Debra Fayroian, violinist Derek Francis and violinist Meyer Shapiro have joined the summer music faculty at Schoolcraft College.

The three will be part of a 12-member faculty which will teach college, senior high school and junior high school students on the Schoolcraft campus June 30 to July 25. The musicians will study chamber music, orchestra performance, music history, theory, and composition. They also will perform in a variety of concerts.

Ms. Fayroian of Livonia began studying cello at age 10. She received most of her early musical training through the public schools and the National Music Camp at Interlochen.

IN 1969 Ms. Fayroian was awarded a scholarship to study for two years with Oliver Edel at the University of Michigan, where she received the chamber music award and the James L. Babcock award.

A winner of the performance competitions at the U-M and the Music Camp, Ms. Fayroian appeared with the orchestras of both in the 1970-73 seasons. During this time she was chosen as a finalist in the Leta Snow National String Competition.

In 1972 she became a member of the Toledo Symphony Orchestra and is now the group's principal cellist. She has appeared as soloist with the Toledo Orchestra and in recital in the Toledo Museum of Art.

ORIGINALLY from London, Derek Farncis received a scholarship to the Royal Academy of Music at 17, and launched his musical career while studying under Frederick Grinko. After playing with the Covent Garden Opera Orchestra, he received a scholarship from the Belgium government and studied in the Brussels Conservatoire with Andre Gertler.

While concertmaster and assistant conductor of the Essex Symphony Orchestra, Francis received his teaching diploma from the Royal Academy of Music. In 1964 he joined the Dallas Symphony and in 1965 he joined the Detroit Symphony. He received his master and doctorate degrees from the University of Michigan.

Recently, he has been a faculty member at Eastern Michigan and Oakland universities. He also has served as concertmaster and assistant conductor of the Grosse Pointe Symphony.

MEYER SHAPIRO, a native of New York City and graduate of the Damrosch Institute of Musical Arts and Juilliard School of Music, studied violin under Leopold Auer, Franz Kneisel and Samuel Gardner. He studied viola under Louis Svcenski.

Before coming to Detroit, Shapiro was concertmaster and assistant conductor of the Toledo Symphony Orchestra. After joining the Detroit Symphony as a violinist he later switched to viola.

Skill Center

It's a special school where the handicapped get their kind of vocational training

By MARGARET MILLER

The teachers are called supervisors at the Northwest Wayne Skill Center, a special part of the Livonia school district program just completing its first year.

The students there are called trainees, and instead of classrooms there are departments.

In the course of a school year, each trainee works in several departments and under several supervisors.

And out of it all comes an evaluation of the potential of a number of young adults who are handicapped in various ways, some work experience that approximates on-the-job training, and, for some, paid positions that they are equipped to handle.

THE SKILL CENTER has operated for its first year in the former Cooper Annex building at Ann Arbor Trail and Middle Belt in Westland. Next year it moves to to Stark school building at Farmington Road and Ann Arbor Trail.

Its students come from 10 school districts—Redford Union, South Redford, Garden City, Plymouth, Wayne Westland, Northville, Cherry Hill, Westwood and Crestwood as well as Livonia.

More than 100 have attended this year, on either a full-time or part-time basis.

All, said counselor Richard Hanson, are those who "cannot be served in a regular classroom situation, either because he has learning problems or because the schools at this time do not offer the kinds of programs that would be beneficial."

THUS, AT the center, a trainee might learn about food services work by being assigned to the "Calorie Counter" restaurant, or he might get a sample of building maintenance by assisting the custodians.

He could be assigned to landscape and green house maintenance or wood working or home skills.

Another training posssibility is health service occupations, and in this program the trainees go to the Middle Belt Nursing Center or St. Mary Hospital to work in housekeeping or the kitchens or the laundry rooms.

Back at the skill center, there's a work activity room, where some of the handicapped do contracted piece work and receive pay, and there is an arts and crafts room. A room for academics and driver safety also is provided, where trainees can learn skills for independent living, like money handling, and can get the necessary knowledge to pass the written portion of a driver's test.

THE PROGRAM is geared, Hanson said, "to help young people with various educational handicaps prepare themselves to work in service occupations."

Along with evaluation and training, great emphasis is placed on work attitudes, he added.

"Getting along with people, being pleasant, taking orders, following instructions—these are most necessary parts of the service occupations that our people can handle," he explained.

"So we try to help them develop good work habits by reporting regularly to assignments at the center, checking work with the supervisors, calling in when they cannot be present."

EVALUATION through a battery of tests begins each trainee's stay at the center.

Then comes a series of department assignments, with six weeks in each of several work areas. Sometimes a trainee who shows special ability in a particular area may be kept there for a second stint.

"We try to give as many different kinds of experience as we feel appropriate," Hanson said. "Many have no idea what kind of work they might be able to do.

"Everyone gropes with that kind of thing, of course, but for a handicapped person the choices are so much more limited."

A VISIT to the Calorie Gallery—a real restaurant where meals are served to staff people, groups and neighborhood visitors—offers a view of on-the-job training at the skill center.

Larry James, who used to work out low-calorie menus as an employe of Weight Watchers, is the supervisor there, and the trainees under his supervision get a full program of restaurant techniques.

"They learn all phases of the work, the various kinds of cooking, including some gourmet work, cleanup, comparative shopping—we've made visits to the Eastern Market—and serving food and running the cash register," Janes said.

One of the trainees is designated foreman each day, he added, and all learn the ins and outs of all the jobs involved.

"WE SERVE good food, too," Janes said. "We have a special soup each day, and sandwiches and salads, and we make great omelets—any kind our customers order."

Besides the staff people from the school district who come to eat at the Calorie Gallery, club groups come in sometimes, "and we do a fantastic business with the senior citizens in the neighborhood." he added.

Three trainees have graduated from the Calorie Gallery to restaurant jobs, Janes said, and he figures there's potential for several more short-order cooks.

"I enjoy working with these kids, and they have more ability and knowledge than I realized," he added. "The thing I haven't had time to do is get out to the restaurants around here and find mnore jobs for them."

SOME OF THE OTHER work areas will be more developed as the school goes into its second year, Hanson said. The landscaping program, will have a greenhouse to use when the move is made to the Stark building. There will be a full class of custodial services.

Hanson also hopes that the work activity area—which will continue through the summer for certain trainees not able to fit into other areas—will start getting more contracts from local businesses.

These have fallen off some with the present economy," he said, "so the people here are doing more of the craft work."

In these areas and the woodwork shop, Hanson said, special emphasis is placed on doing good work, the kind that makes people want to buy.

"We keep stressing over and over the necessity of taking pride and care in our work," he said. "That's a most important part of training for jobs like these."

He said the trainees in the work activity center are paid by the piece for what they do, with wages based on minimum wage for the amount of work that would be turned out by a worker of average intelligence. "Our trainees in that area can't handle that much," he added, "but they earn money for what they can do."

HANSON ALSO emphasized the appreciation of the center for the cooperative programs worked out with the Middle Belt center and St. Mary Hospital.

From this program, too, a couple of paying jobs have resulted.

He said an important function of the staff at the skill center is working with prospective employers of the trainees. "We try to instill a good work attitude in our young people, but those who hire them need to understand they have limitations.

"We are training people for the kind of jobs that may not be exciting, but need doing. It's better for everyone—the employers, the kids, the taxpayers—when they can hold such jobs.

"But they are not cut out to be supervisors, and employers who are pleased with their performance have the tendency to promote them to work they cannot handle."

RSL tallies contributions

A total of $8,085 was distributed to 17 different programs of aid to the handicapped as the Redford Suburban League completed its 1974-75 year.

The league raised a large portion of its philanthropical funds with a celebrity fashion show last fall.

Throughout its history of nearly two decades, the organization has made assistance to the retarded and handicapped its primary goal.

One of the donations, a check for $500, was presented recently to Clifford Page, principal of the Northwest Wayne Skill Center in Livonia.

The money, Page said, would be used to purchase equipment for the center's program of training programs for the handicapped and for some recreational equipment such as bumper pool tables for the center.

Other recipients of RSL donations included:

Goodfellows of Redford Township, Redford Union special education programs, South Redford special education programs, Senior Citizens of Redford Township, Redford Information and Counseling Center on Drugs.

Methodist Children's Home, Merriman House, the Lexington Home, Northwest Center for Trainable Mentally-retarded, Northwestern Guidance Clinic, Northwest Communities Association for Retarded Citizens.

Plymouth Center for Human Development, Oakland County Association for Retarded Citizens, Community Opportunity Center.

The largest gift was to the Community Opportunity Center, which is preparing to open a home for retarded adults in Plymouth later this year.

The Suburban League also stipulated that a final donation will made, either to the Plymouth Parents Association for Retarded Citizens or, if that group receives sufficient funds from other community groups, to Redford Township drug center to apply to its building fund.

Duns Scotus offers in-town music camp

Duns Scotus College, Nine Mile and Evergreen roads in Southfield will offer the fifth workshop in the woods for music students not planning to attend out-of-town music camps.

The program will begin June 22 and run until Aug. 8, and is under the direction of Detroit Symphony musician Raymond Benner. Sessions will be held three days per week for seven weeks. Student-faculty concerts will be given on July 11 and Aug. 8 at 8:30 p.m. in the Italian Gothic Chapel of Duns Scotus.

Joining Benner as faculty will be Detroit Symphony members Clement Barone, Donald Baker, Malvern Kaufman and Joseph Striplin. The faculty will hold auditions for wind and string players June 8 at 2 p.m. in the recreation hall at Duns Scotus. For an application call the college.

"When workshop in the woods started five summers ago as an experiment, we were surprised at the response," says Benner. "We had no idea of the need here in town for the serious music student who was not going away.

"Then the students began talking about the opportunity to play in small ensembles as compared to the highly orchestra- oriented program of the high school, colleges and other summer music camps," adds Benner.

"In chamber music we function as individuals and are responsible for the music without a conductor," says 16-year-old Edith Nagy of Southfield. "Also in a quartet or quintet you can hear yourself and concentrate on the fine points of playing."

The workshop also will continue its mini-concert for shut-ins this year. Hospitals, orphanages, convalescent homes and other organizations which wish a free min-concert should call Miriam Ciesla, workshop executive secretary, at Duns Scotus.

Forum focus is on nursing

A forum for nurses, hospital administrators and others concerned with growing dissatisfaction in health-care services in the U.S. will be June 10 at Schoolcraft College.

Ms. Barbara Bargo, a registered nurse, will serve as the forum's facilitator. She said it will seek answers to questions like why nurses are leaving the profession, basic dissatisfactions they are experiencing, and what can be done.

The format will allow interaction among those who are seeking ways to cause change in nursing and those who are considering or have decided to leave the profession.

Participants will be assisted in taking an in-depth look at their total skills profile as they may apply toward a new profession. Discussion will center on ways change can be made within the traditional hospital setting.

Presented by the Schoolcraft's Women's Programs and Services, the forum will be from 7-9 p.m. in F-370 of the Forum Building. Registration is $1 at the door, but enrollment is limited and preregistration is suggested at the campus, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

Problems? Call consumer line

By MARGARET MILLER

If you want to learn how to deal with the business world, try getting on the answering end of a Consumer Hot Line service.

That's the advice of Mildred Hadley and Elizabeth McCarthey, two of the volunteers who have been manning a service started just over a year ago by the YWCA of Western Wayne County from its center at 26279 Michigan, Inkster.

Each Wednesday, the Hot Line volunteers answer calls made to the YW special line, 561-4112, from a wide variety of persons disillusioned with purchases or services.

But answering the call is just the beginning. Then comes a series of calls to the businesses involved in an attempt to find out what happened and what can be done about it.

"AND ONE THING we've learned," Mrs. Hadley said, "is that sometimes the business is doing its best to please and the customer is being unreasonable."

Or it may be a case of shoddy goods or poor service or just misunderstanding. The volunteers have fielded cases involving all these factors.

And they have found their tasks provide them with an education in consumerism.

Mrs. Hadley had begun hers even before she joined this volunteer project. When a tire she purchased proved defective and she did not get satisfaction from the dealer, she wrote to the manufacturer and received a replacement.

"That taught me to go to the top," she said, "and that's how it's often best to handle the complaints I get on the consumer line."

MRS. McCARTHY added a couple of other suggestions for consumers in dealing with businesses.

"Learn about the laws governing purchases and services, especially purchase agreements," she said. "And no matter what a salesman tells you about guarantees and payments, get it in writing. Many of the calls we have had have to do with differences regarding verbal agreement."

The women also have learned that to get satisfaction "you have to keep calling back—you may get the runaround for a while, but eventually you wear them down."

IN THE YWCA Hot Line office, each volunteer keeps a file of the calls she handles.

Sometimes it's a matter of referral to another agency; sometimes the volunteer herself takes on the sometimes long and arduous series of calls to try to get satisfaction for the consumer.

"After we complete our checking and a settlement agreement is reached, we always check back to be sure it is carried out," Mrs. Hadley added.

These two volunteers, along with Kate Hollowell of Livonia and Jo Courtier of Westland, have been manning the line, so far open only on Wednesdays. Calls on other days are noted by the YWCA staff, so that by the time a volunteer comes in on Wednesday there may be several calls waiting for her.

If more volunteers joined the project, more could be handled and the time needed for investigation might be less, Mrs. Hadley said.

"It's really interesting volunteer work," she added, "and you learn a lot for your own use."

Ecumenical Reflection

Block grants encourage integrated housing in suburbs

By REV. JAMES W. SCHAEFER
Pilgrim United Church of Christ, Livonia

The remarks that follow have their starting point back a few years, when busing to achieve racial integration was a possibility. We were waiting for a ruling from the U.S. Supreme Court.

Taking people at their word (I know no other way to hear them), I heard that schools close to home were important to people, and that quality education was not achieved by busing kids to integrated classrooms.

The third statement to be expressed dealt more closely with the constitutional and court issue—integration. Here, people would say, integration should be in housing, and then classrooms would be naturally integrated.

These same speakers would say they had nothing against black people and they didn't object to integration, "but not by busing my kids." I felt then there was a racist attitude underlying the whole "anti-forced busing" attitude, yet it was more than that.

RECENTLY, Cliff Schrupp from our Northwest Inter-Faith Center for Racial Integration and Joe Guggenheim of the Committee for Law and Housing, along with others forming a Coalition for Block Grant Compliance, have worked with the federal Civil Rights Commission to monitor and evaluate the applications for funds from local communities.

This is a large federal revenue-sharing program that will extend for five more years—local communities will be applying annually for funds.

My concern is that, given the statements about integration made a few years ago, we should expect support of this monitoring activity, but opposition is developing.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has withheld the granting of funds until further information can be presented. This "freeze" affects Livonia, Redford Township, Westland, Garden City, Southfield and Rochester.

(A bit of explanation fits here. At a national conference in Washington during April, Cliff Schrupp made contact with the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing, and that group agreed to provide legal counsel and representation for the Michigan Coalition. Subsequently, a complaint was filed and the grants were witheld by HUD.)

NOW, REPORTS the Observer & Eccentric, our congressional representative, Marvin Esch, is upset and is fighting the delay.

Rather than supporting an attempt to provide housing, which supposedly is the only acceptable way to integrate, Mr. Esch is fighting attempts to require compliance with the law of the land regarding equal opportunity.

Livonia has been very successful in seeking out industrial and business corporations to locate in its mile-wide industrial belt. We like the taxes they pay.

At the same time, both black and white employes of these firms cannot always find housing close to work, since most housing in Livonia costs more than they can afford. Apparently we like the taxes but we do not care as much for the workers. This is the major objection to the proposal from Livonia for Block Grant money.

I AM LEFT with a perplexing dilemma: Were those who objected to busing and said that integration should come through housing being honest in their statements at that time, or were they only expressing an idea that was convenient to oppose busing?

Now, when we seek true open housing, they are objecting. The city council and the mayor are part of this, too.

There is one other fact that needs to be included in this discussion. It is the fact that the cost of housing is so high today that private enterprise cannot construct low or even middle-class housing profitably. The only way in which housing for low and middle-income persons can be built is with government subsidy or participation or both.

My concern is that we seem to be back to the same old issue: racism.

It is sad to realize.

Crusader programs win top awards

Sunday School activities at Garden City Free Methodist Church and its Christian Youth Crusaders, an activity-oriented program for children from three to 13, won the church top Michigan conference.

Richard Mulholland, Sunday School superintendent, was named "Superintendent of the year," and a similar honor was accorded the entire church school staff.

In the Crusader program, the staff for the mid-week program was judged best in the area and Mrs. Pam Brandymore, cadet director, was runner-up for top award.

The Rev. Nelson Brandymore said the awards are particularly significant in view of the church's recent history.

ROBIN WEST READS a book by a former Livonia resident. (Staff photc by Sherry Kahan)

'Novel recalls area life'

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Two students at Whitman Junior High School in Livonia were startled recently when they read a book called "Nantucket Summer." The words Livonia and Westland burst out at them from the pages.

On page 11 Robin West and Jill Lectka read about a teen-aged girl, who while babysitting next door saw a sign on the wall.

"I am Cynthia Cramer," it said. "I live in Livonia, Michigan. I shop at Hudson's Westland, Crowley's Livonia Mall, and Saks and Bonwits in Troy."

The inclusion of the names of these two cities is not as surprising as it might have seemed to the two young readers. The books author, Phyllis Green, was until last February a resident of Livonia. Her children, Sharon and Bruce, were students at Henry Clay Elementary School, and her husband, Bob, was in the insurance business.

"I DIDN'T EXPECT that the author would mention places I live near," said Robin, an eighth grader. "That was interesting."

"It was also interesting to read about places I don't live near, like Nantucket. It sounded like a nice spot.

"The book is about a girl named A.D., who goes to Nantucket to babysit for a little girl. At the beginning of the story, A.D. acted like a little girl herself sometimes. She didn't want to give up her doll, Dorothy.

"The summer changed her life. She had a lot of responsibility qaking care of the little girl, and in the end she didn't need her doll any more. She had grown up."

JILL FELT that Nantucket Island came alive in the book.

"Mrs. Green described it vividly and realistically," she said. "I have been to the east coast and know how beautiful it is, but I have never been to Nantucket.

What Jill especially sympathized with was the problem of babysitting "because I don't particularly look forward to babysitting jobs myself."

Jill also appreciated "the spice of adventure and suspicion" that Mrs. Green incorporated into her book.

Having been in Livonia four years, Mrs. Green and her family now live in Madison, Wis.

Cooley reunion scheduled

January and June graduates of Cooley High School in 1945 will hold their 30th reunion Saturday, June 7 in Fairlane Club in Dearborn.

The reception will start at 6:30 p.m. with a buffet at 7:30 p.m. Dancing to the Tony Russo Band will begin at 9 p.m.

Tickets at $15 per person will be sold only in advance.

PART OF THE PICTURE

Complete facilities are important in funeral service, of course . . . and our new facilities on Six Mile Road were built with this in mind.

But they're just part of the picture.

To our way of thinking, the people who serve here are the most important part. They provide the understanding and concern that funeral service is all about.

At all our locations, you'll find that the completeness of our service equals the completeness of our facilities.

The Alfa Romeo doesn't cost $12,000. It's just built that way.

The Alfa Romeo Spider Veloce convertible.

You might have admired it. For its Pininfarina styling. Its race-refined engineering. Its eager double overhead cam aluminum engine.

And you might have thought that a machine built like this one must cost around $12,000.

Now, take another look.

Because the price is not $12,000. It's a sensible $6,820

Even more sensible when you consider the latest Motor Trend magazine test that reports an Alfa Spider got 29.2 mpg (a tribute to the efficiency of our fuel injection system). How much you get depends on how you drive.

The Spider also gives you four-wheel disc brakes. A five-speed gearbox. Cast magnesium wheels. Limited-slip differential. A sense of handling you've never experienced before.

And these luxury extras as standard: fully instrumented console. Radial tires. Polished wood steering wheel.

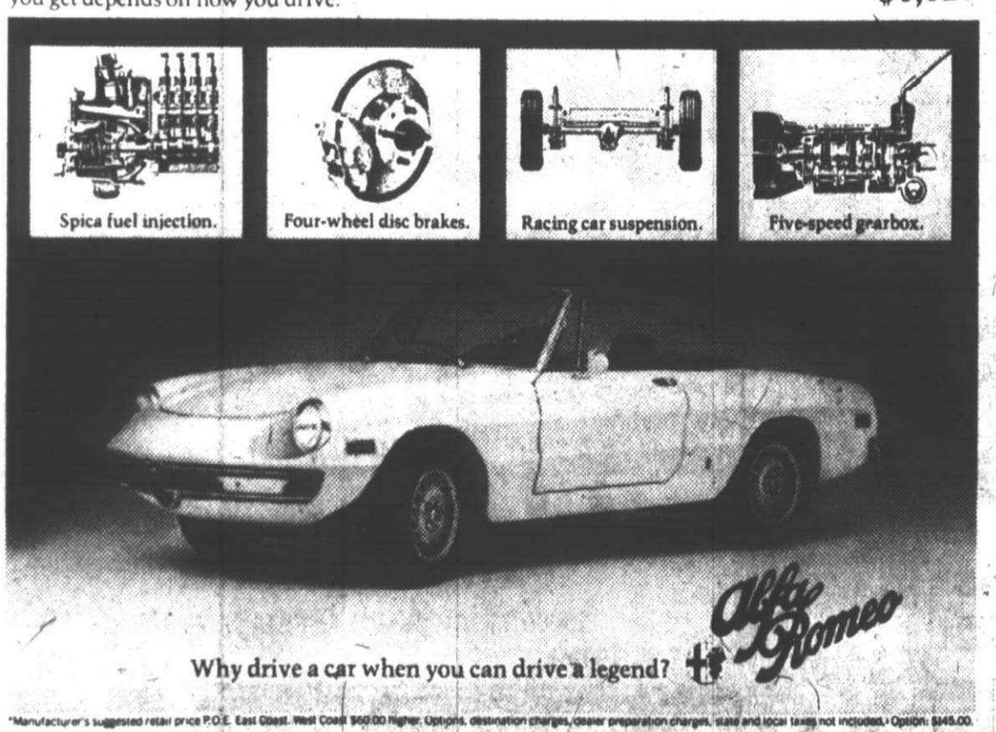
Today, it's never made so much sense for the road.

Test drive one this week.
At your dealer.

$6,820



Why drive a car when you can drive a legend? Alfa Romeo

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price P.O.E. East Coast. West Coast $60.00 higher. Options, destination charges, dealer preparation charges, state and local taxes not included. Option: $345.00.

322 Condominiums For sale

Uncle Sam wants you... to save $1,474.50.*

And Applegate wants you to save $3,000 more.

If there's one thing we know about, it's how to save you money. And we're not about to let anybody outdo us—not even the U.S. government.

So we'll more than match your Federal tax credit—just for starters. We'll also put you in a luxury condominium townhouse. Part of a serenely beautiful community where you can enjoy everything from a 1500 Sq. Ft. swimming pool and all-weather tennis courts to a delightful clubhouse with a fireplace lounge, game room and snack bar. All surrounded by trees and green space.

As a condominium owner, you'll enjoy benefits like tax savings, equity buildup and a hedge against inflation. Part of your monthly fee also pays a professional staff to handle maintenance problems, so you can play.

But you should act now. For two reasons. One, both offers have a time limit. And two, there are only 6 units which qualify for this program. So don't push your luck. Although Uncle Sam's offer is good all year, ours expires July 1st, 1975

How you can save $4,474.50 on our two Bedroom Townhouse:

Regular price	$32,490.00
Less our discount	$ 3,000.00
Purchase Price	$29,490.00
Less U.S. Tax Credit of 5%	$ 1,474.50*
Actual purchase price	$28,015.50
You save	$ 4,474.50

*Subject to certification of guidelines and restrictions of the U.S. tax cut bill and IRS ruling.
